Kennedy Will Not Campaign

Only After Renomination Of President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., has no present intention of campaigning either for President Johnson or the latter's possible opponent, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., in 1968 presidential primaries.

Kennedy, who has announced he will support a Johnson-Humphrey ticket for re-election, has made it clear to friends he feels this commitment to campaign for the President applies only after Johnson's renomination.

At the same time, he will avoid repudiation of McCarthy's views on Vietnam, which are essentially similar to his own. But he expects to stand aside while the Minnesota senator follows the path of primary contests.

The New York senator said recently he would have something more to say about his commitment if and when McCarthy officially enters the contest. But he has told his associates not to expect any startling pronouncement.

The guessing among them is that he will say it's a free country in which men are at liberty to oppose each other in the primaries but will avoid any specific endorsement of either.

This would mean that party members critical of Johnson who have rallied around Kennedy would be left on their own to follow McCarthy or to stand aloof from his crusade.

In the judgment of the Kennedy camp, McCarthy will have to provide something more than Vietnam dissent to make a respectable showing. The thing he will have to meld with are frustrations with the President's domestic programs.

If the Minnesotan can do that, they do not discount the possibility that he could take away from Johnson some New York state convention delegates, chosen in primaries. This would mean a split delegation for Kennedy to head at the nominating convention.

Although President Johnson said Friday he doesn't know what McCarthy plans to do and "I am not sure he knows what he plans to do," Democratic colleagues say the Minnesota senator has left no doubt in their minds that he will enter at least four primaries.

Robert Kennedy is only one of several war critics likely to be embarrassed by a McCarthy campaign. The word has gone to Johnson strategists, for example, that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy hopes he won't be asked to run as a favorite son for the Prssident in Massachusetts, where McCarthy has indicated a primary entry.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, a policy critic seeking renomination, will be on a spot if the names of Johnson and McCarthy are on the ballot in the Wisconsin primary.

The same thing could happen to Sen. Wayne Morse in Oregon and to Sen. George S. McGovern in South Dakota if McCarthy gets into primaries in those states.

Doubt Any Action On Reform Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chances are waning that Congress will complete action this year on election-reform legislation, and the political infighting is increasing over who is to blame.

Rep. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., chief Republican sponsor of a bispartisen measure before the House Administration Committee, said Democratic absenteeism is responsible for its repeated inability to muster a quorum.

The committee plans to try again Monday, but Chairman Omar Burleson, D-Tex., said he is not optimistic.

Burleson agreed with Goodell that some committee members "are not entirely happy with the bill and are not cooperating too well." He added this has been a greater problem with Democrats than Republicans.

But Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., said Republican absenteeism frequently has been over 50 per cent. And Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., said "there's no calculated absenteeism."

If a quorum of the 25-member committee shows up, Goodell said that the panel's 11 Republicans plus Burleson and Rep. Robert T. Ashmore, D-S.C., chief Democratic sponsor, could combine to approve the pending measure.

Banks Ordered Closed

British Announce Pound Devaluation

LONDON (AP) — The British government has devalued the pound, imposed drastic new credit restrictions and sought a billion-dollar loan from the International Monetary Fund to stave off bankruptcy.

The treasury announced Saturday night the momentous decision to cut the value of the pound from $2.80 to $2.40. This amounts to 14.3 per cent.

Led by the United States, the world's big banking nations announced one by one they would not follow suit, thus at least initially permitting the devaluation to work its full effect in stimulating Britain's sagging export trade.

The government's emergency action came after weeks of attacks on the pound that had sent it to its lowest level in years. It was the result of an agreement patiently worked out in tough bargaining with top banking nations.

All British banks and stock exchanges were ordered closed Monday while arrangements for the new exchange rate were worked out.

The devaluation time was the equivalent of 4:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

The devaluation came after weeks of attack on the pound sterling that have sent it to its lowest level in years in relation to the dollar.

It represents the collapse of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's three-year policy to save the pound from devaluation.

Among other measures Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan announced was an order to British banks to limit all lending to priority borrowers, especially those in the export business.

Drastic new restrictions on installment buying and other credit facilities were clamped down as from Midnight Saturday (7 p.m. EST).

The government also announced plans to cut 100 million pounds—$280 million—off Britain's $2 billion spending bill for defense next year.

In Washington, the British embassy reported an application to the International Monetary Fund for $1.4 billion in standby credit that Britain could draw on to cover balance of payments requirements as they arise.

An embassy aide said that in addition to imposing strict credit restraints, the fiscal package accompanying devaluation of the pound includes increased taxes, strict enforcement of existing wage and income controls and additional restraints on installment credit.

The government rebate now given exporters of certain products will be dropped, the embassy said, because the lowered value of the pound should make British goods proportionately cheaper in terms of foreign currencies.

The pound was last devalued in 1949, going from $4.03 to $2.80, in the depth of a postwar economic crisis.

The first foreign reaction Saturday night came from Stockholm where the Swedish National Bank said it will not follow Britain by devaluating the Swedish crown. One pound from now on equals 12.4157 Swedish crowns.

A British government statement said steps will be taken to protect the nation's poor from hardship resulting from the devaluation.

This island kingdom imports much of its food and most of the raw materials used by its factories, and the price of these imports will go up by the same percentage as the devaluation — roughly 14.3 per cent. Export prices should go down by the same amount.

Soviet Weapon Is Potent

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has developed orbital nuclear missiles with devices enabling them to break through an enemy's missile defenses, a Soviet military commander claimed Saturday.

Marshal Nikolai I. Krylov, commander in chief of Soviet strategic rocket forces, made the announcement at a Moscow meeting called in connection with Sunday's oxservance of Soviet Missile Forces Day.

He said the new missile was part of a formidable stockpile designed to protect the Soviet Union and "the entire world of socialism."

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced on Nov. 3 the United States had evidence the Soviet Union was testing an orbital bomb that could be put into use in a year's time.

Asked about Krylov's claim, the Defense Department in Washington said it had nothing further to add to what McNamara said on Nov.3.

An orbital weapon is launched like the various spacecraft sent up by the United States and Russia. It can be brought down on a pre-selected target.

The Soviet Union had acknowledged before that it had orbital missiles, but this was the most explicit claim to date of their capabilities.

The penetration devices were especially significant in view of U.S. plans to build a "thin" antimissile system that presumably would be vulnerable to missiles equipped with such devices.

The Soviet Union has developed "new, powerful missiles capable of delivering nuclear warheads to the target along ballistic and orbital trajectories," Krylov said.

"The head portions of these rockets carry devices to break through the enemy's antimissile defenses."

Then speaking of other rockets, Krylov said Soviet rocket forces also have solid-fuel intercontinental missiles that can be mounted on self-propelled carriers with cross-country mobility that makes them invulnerable.

"No other country has such launching facilities at its disposal," he declared.

Krylov's statement was distributed by Tass, the official news agency.

Romney To Lead US Out Of Vietnam War

Leading Republican Declares Candidacy

DETROIT (AP) — Gov. George Romney, pledging his efforts to build this nation into one "worthy ot God's belssing" and to lead it out of the Vietnam War, Saturday declared himself a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a Romney backer, greeted the news reaffirming his fullest support for Romney as the man who most nearly would be "a moderate, able, winning candiate in 1968."

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, described by Romney as likely to be his toughest contestant for the GOP nomination, called Romney a formidable candidate who has "an excellent record of service as governor" and is "an effective and energetic campaigner."

Romney became the first major figure in either party to announce aspirations for the highest political office in the land his parents fled more than half a century ago because of attacks against their Mormon religion.

He said he would enter at least four presidential primaries —New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon.

Flanked by his attractive wife, Lenore, the 60-year-old three-term governor told a news conference in clear, emphatic tones, "I have decided to fight for and win the Republican nomination and election as president of the United States."

The announcement came in an 11-minute speech, which attacked president Johnson and was filled with declarations of moral duty typical of the devout Mormon.

It was made in Detroit's Veterans Memorial building where —in the same room—Romney launched his political career as a gubernatorial candidate less than six years ago.

Romney wasted no time in getting into action. After his announcement, which followed a breakfast meeting with 600 Republicans from Michigan, Romney returned to the meeting and made a strong pitch for an open housing law in Michigan.

Then he hurried into the first acknowledged campaign strategy meeting with top aides from Lansing and Washington, where campaign offices have been humming for months.

"The richest nation on earth is in a fiscal mess," Romney said in his announcement. "We are mired in an Asian land war which drains our resources and scrifices our young men with no end in sight. We are becoming a house divided."

"The crime rate mounts and over half the major crimes are committed by teen-agers," he added. "We have begun to see

No Long Truces Promised

SAIGON (AP) — The allies aren't likely to go along with three-day cease-fires at Christmas and New Year's and a seven-day halt for Tet which the Communists announced Saturday.

There is no doubt shorter cease-fires, running one day at Christmas and New Year and perhaps 48 hours at Tet, the lunar new year, will be observed by the allies.

Such truces have been the rule in recent years, though repeatedly marked by bloody incidents, and President Nguyen Van Thieu said Nov. 11 they probably would be observed again this time.

But South Vietnamese and American officials are unanimous in saying the three-day and seven-day truces announced by the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front would give the Communists too much of an opportunity to move supplies and men into the South and to regroup their troops.

The announcement by the Viet Cong's clandestine radio got the jump on the South Vietnamese government.

However, the two sides have never agreed on a cease-fire. Each has proclaimed its own. Because of the informality of these arrangements, the allies have always classified Red attacks during the truce periods as incidents rather than violations.

Basing its announcement on Saigon time, the Communist broadcast set the following hours for the cease-fires:

Christmas, 1 a.m. Dec. 24 to 1 a.m. Dec. 27.

New Year's, 1 a.m. Dec. 30 to 1 a.m. Jan. 2, 1968.

Tet, 1 a.m. Jan. 27 to 1 a.m. Feb. 3.

Saigon clocks are 13 hours ahead of those in the Eastern Standard Time belt of the United States.

One of the chief opponents on the Allied side of a long cease-fire, which would bring a corresponding halt in the bombing of North Vietnam, is Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

"We can live with" a brief bombing pause, Westmoreland said in Washington Wednesday but added: "I'm not happy about the prospect."

Candidate In '68

Detroit—Gov. George Romney of Michigan is shown Saturday as he announced his candidacy for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination.

Why I Will Vote YES

Eual Richardson, 724 North Osage, a plasterer and paper hanger, gives his views on the Rival Manufacturing Co. industrial obligation bonds to be voted on Nov. 21:

"We need the 150 jobs Rival will provide for our younger people who need employment. Sedalia has needed a program like this for a long time.

"Besides the additional jobs created at Rival, other businesses will benefit from the increased money in circulation, which in itself will promote more employment.

"When we can get extra jobs at no increase in taxes everybody—but everybody—should get out and vote YES on Nov. 21."

US, South Vietnamese Troops Pound Enemy

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen and South Vietnamese troops hammered at Hanoi regulars on two ridges in the Dak To sector Saturday, pursuing a drive that American commanders believe has upset plans for a major Communist offensive.

American jet squadrons apparently hit again at North Vietnam in the effort to cut Red supply lines. Though there was no immediate announcement by the U.S. command, Radio Hanoi said one strike centered at Haiphong, the frequently raided port city.

The Communists broadcast a claim they shot down eight planes.

Capture of two key heights Friday in the Dak To sector, fronting on the Laotian frontier 270 miles north of Saigon, freed combat units for pressure at other points the Communists had laboriously entrenched and supplied over a period of weeks.

"They were well prepared for this fight," said Col. Richard Johnson, "and we have preempted them in the first round by forcing them to fight where we wanted to and not where they had planned to fight."

Johnson commands the U.S. 4th Infantry Division's 1st Brigade, one of the major units in an allied force totaling about 10,000 men that is pitted against perhaps 8,000 North Vietnamese in that area of the central highlands.

A battalion of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division battled North Vietnamese troops on the flank of a mountain nine miles west of Dak To. A spokesman said the contact was heavy.

Government rangers and paratroopers fought for high ground nine miles northeast of Dak To.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said 764 North Vietnamese troops had been killed and 12 captured through Friday in the operations that flared Nov. 3. American losses were put at 136 dead and 600 wounded.

A fight Friday night in the Mekong Delta 60 miles southwest of Saigon demonstrated again an enemy aggressiveness manifest since the outset of the dry season late last month.

Gunners leveled 105mm howitzers and fired at point-blank range to chop up a strong Viet Cong force that attacked an artillery base of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division. The guerrillas swarmed to within 25 yards of the base's perimeter before being thrown back.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said 102 Viet Cong were killed while American casualties were five men killed and 38 wounded.

Later reports from the 9th Division down-graded the enemy losses.

A field officer said the Viet Cong were seen by the light of parachute flares to be dragging away bodies and only five were found on the field. He said: "We're listing 78 probably killed."

Holiday truce talk shared attention with field operations.

Ward Lines On New Map

For the benefit of Sedalia voters who will be casting their ballots in the bond election next Tuesday, a map showing new ward lines and polling places is on page 9-A of today's paper.

An editorial on the election, to permit Rival Manufacturing Co. to sell industrial obligation bonds, is on the editorial page.

There appeared no doubt that short cease-fires will be observed by the allies for Christmas, New Year's and Tet, the lunar new year. President Nguyen Van Thieu said Nov. 11 that South Vietnam probably would proclaim them as in the past.

Market Performs Steadily

NEW YORK (AP) — A fairly steady performance by the stock market last week lent hope to those who have been waiting for a turnaround from the steep decline which began in late September.

It was the second straight week that the market had more or less held its ground. Analysts saw it as still groping for a base from which to mount a worh while year-end rally. But there was no general conviction that the long slide had actually reached bottom.

In the week just ended, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained one-half of a point at 310.7.

The Dow Jones industrial average declined .70 to 862.11.

During the week, however, the Dow industrials rebounded from the 848-850 area which had been tested for the first time in the previous week. That support level began to look stronger as it survived repeated tests.

The question is whether the market will continue a recovery movement, or perhaps fall below the support line which has been holding. If this happens, a decline to the 820-830 zone is looked for by those who study market charts.

Of 1,631 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 794 declined and 712 advanced — not a decisive margin.

Volume for the week was 51,129,020 shares compared with 41,819,850 for the prior week, cut to four trading days by election day.

Perhaps the most encouraging feature of the financial week was a new firmness in the bond market. Weakness in bonds had brought about a corresponding increase in their rate of yields, making stock yields look small in comparison. As in 1966, the interest rate situation has been the worst enemy of stock prices.

The week's trading was mixed but the momentum of a rally Thursday carried through into Friday.

The market was able to weather a statement by Chairman William McChesney Martin on Wednesday that credit controls are in prospect unless the tax increase is put into effect.

Bond prices rode a roller-coaster the past week.

U.S. Steel called off its announced $225 million issue, pulling bond prices up from their lows at the week's opening. Later, prices drifted lower. Investors' interest in corporate bonds perked up markedly with higher corporate yields.

Fete By Moose Lodge

The Sedalia Lodge, No. 1494, Loyal Order of Moose, which received its charter from the Grand Lodge on Nov. 13, 1949, celebrated its 18 years of progressive growth Nov. 11, at Moose Home. This was to pay tribute to the men whose vision and hard work have guided the fraternity to its present position of service to both its members and the community. A special program honoring the past governors was presented.

Mrs. Karen Marcum, mistress of ceremonies, in recognizing each governor, gave a short history of the accomplishments achieved during his term of office, calling to mind the individual characteristics of each.

"Our lodge," said Mrs. Marcum, "can be very proud of this group and their leadership which has produced, among other honors, two Pilgrims, the highest degree bestowed by the order; two state presidents and a deputy supreme governor, in the short space of the 18 years.

Albert Racunas, who was instrumental in bringing the Moose to Sedalia, was introduced and in his remarks recalled how he, and fellow workers who came to Sedalia with Pittsburgh-Corning, had been active members of the Moose in Pennsylvania and became charter members when this lodge was instituted.

Fifteen governors have served since 1949, three for two terms. The first governor was Chief of Police William Miller, who was appointed by the Grand Lodge. He was followed by Ervin Davis, Joe Cook and Harry Satterwhite, who served two terms as governor, was secretary for 11 years and was the second Pilgrim. Lloyd Deuschle, the first Pilgrim, was the first state president and deputy supreme governor. Cecil Curtis, second member of Sedalia Lodge, was elected second state president; Campbell Berry, Dick Burk, Howard Webb, Tommy McNally, who served two terms; Walter McMellen, Larry Riley, (the present secretary); Frank Vanderpool and Richard Michaelis (serving his second term).

The honored guests were each presented a Moose tie and their wives received a corsage.

Dancing with music furnished by Lloyd Pace and his Band, concluded the evening.

Assisting Mrs. Marcum in the presentation ceremony were Senior Regent Phylis Williams of the Women of the Moose and Governor Richrd Michaelis.

Gerty the Goose Not for Eating

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Charles Haines suspects the proximity of Thanksgiving prompted somebody to reach over his backyard fence and steal his pet goose, Gerty.

"They'll be folled," he predicts. "She's too tough to eat. I don't even think you could eat the gravy."

Gerty is 15 years old and Haines says "to eat a goose over 2 years old, you have to have good teeth."

Confidence Game Grabs His Savings

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An 82-year-old man has learned that his $1,400 savings account has been closed out by confidence men—and a woman.

G. C. Weary of St. Louis told police Friday he signed what he thought was a telegram receipt earlier this week, but later learned it was a savings account withdrawal slip.

Weary described the unhappy chain of events which started Tuesday at his bank:

A man approached him at the bank and asked him if he wanted a job.

"No," said Weary and the man then obtained his name, address and phone number in case he changed his mind.

Later Tuesday he received a phone call from a woman who told him there had been a mixup at the bank. He told her his savings account number and balance—$1,400.

Minutes later Weary heard a knock on his door. He answered the door and signed a receipt for a telegram. Later he learned it wasn't a receipt for a telegram.

The bank notified Weary Friday that his account had been depleted by about $1,400.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am an officer in Job's Daughters and we are having a big dance in a couple of months. I want to ask Chuck who is one of the nicest, most mannerly fellows in the whole school. All the kids are crazy about him.

I was very surprised when my mother told me I could not ask him because it might injure my reputation. Chuck lives in a foster home and this is what my mother has against him. She says all kids in foster homes have parents who aren't married, or they are alcoholic, or in jail, or they don't want the kids. According to her, the family is trash no matter how you look at it.

Is she right? I am just sick over this. — SO DISAPPOINTED

Dear So: It's not true that all kids in foster homes have parents who are not married, alcoholic or in jail. Some foster children are orphaned, or they have only one parent who is unable to care for them. Even if the boy did come from the type home your mother described, it would not necessarily mean that he is no good. Kids who have unfortunate backgrounds need acceptance and kindness from people like you — to prevent people like your mother from breaking their spirit.

Dear Ann Landers: I just finished reading the letter from the woman who screamed bloody murder because her husband retired and is now sticking to her like glue. Some people don't know when they are well off. Eight out of 10 wives in the U.S. would be thrilled to trade places with that woman. Me included.

Ask her how she would like to sit alone every night wondering where her husband is and what he is doing. Ask her how she would like to worry about whether he turned over in a ditch because he was drunk.

I could write a book about what I've gone through with a husband who let me know early in our marriage that he had no interest in me, his home or his children. Whenever I hear a wife complain because her husband spends too much time around the house I wish I could tell her how lucky she is. Do it for me, will you please? — WHAT'S SHE GOT THAT I DON'T HAVE?

Dear What: Maybe she doesn't have anything that you don't have. Maybe her husband has something that your husband doesn't have. Namely the maturity to accept responsibility.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister and I just learned two facts which really knocked us out. (1) Dad was married for three years to another woman before he married Mom. (2) Sis was adopted when she was two months old.

When we told Mom how let down we were she said she wasn't trying to keep anything from us. She said it didn't occur to her to mention these "details." Sis cried for an hour when she heard the news. Now we both wonder what else is being kept from us. I have a feeling I'm adopted, too. Are we justified in feeling betrayed, or is Mom right? — HURT

Dear Hurt: You and your sister should have been told about the previous marriage and the adoption many years ago. Had you grown up with the knowledge it would have had no significance. This way, it looms large and important in your minds and has shaken your confidence in your parents. Sorry, but they made a big mistake.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents ... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TOWAWAY zones aren't a problem for Parisian drivers but a diabolical device called a "Denver Stopper" is. French police don't believe in towing away illegally parked cars, they simply immobilize them on the spot by clamping the stopper on a wheel. An offending driver can't budge until he pays his fine and police unlock the clamp.

William Stanton, as the judge, dressed in a black robe, as the badges were presented sentenced each boy to so much time until he would receive his next badge. The benediction was followed by taps by Randy Stanton.

Garden Club No. 3, met at the home of Mrs. Wilford Acker, 806 East 24th, with Mrs. Acker as assistant hostess.

Mrs. Acker, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Carl Johnson, Green Ridge, who reviewed the book, "Silent Skies." An unusual book, written by A. W. Eckert, who told in detail of the killing off of the passenger pigeon. As far back as 1813, men in crowds would await the birds flight back to their nesting place and feeding ground and then kill them by the thousands. If they killed more than they desired, the rest were left to suffer and die. By 1884 the flights were smaller and the last flight checked was around 1898. Now that man has devastated the species the passenger pigeon can only be found in bird sanctuaries. Mrs. Johnson presented a most difficult book in an informative way.

There were 16 members present and the one guest, Mrs. Johnson.

The club voted to have its Christmas party luncheon at Bothwell Hotel.

Offerings For Negro Church

LAUREL, Miss. (AP) — Six downtown white churches here will join in a Thanksgiving service Wednesday night with voluntary offerings going to the Negro church whose parsonage was bombed this week.

A ministerial group announced that Immaculate Conception Roman Catholic Church would take part with five Protestant bodies in the annual observance and the offerings would be given to St. Paul's Methodist Church.

A spokesman said the donation was an effort to show concern over the night rider dynamiting that damaged St. Paul's parsonage, occupied by the Rev. Allen Johnson.

Pay Television Future Vague

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The future of pay television is still up in the air, a federal communications commissioner says.

"So far I only know of another commissioner and myself who favor it and I can't even speculate on what my colleagues are going to do," Kenneth A. Cox said Friday at a conference of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Cox, one of seven commissioners, voiced his approval of editorializing on television and radio programs, noting that broadcasting can be "an instrument for social reform and public enlightenment."

Accidents

Endeavoring to apprehend a traffic violator about seven miles south on U.S. Highway 65, about 2:10 p.m. Friday, resulted in an accident in which Cpl. Peter Stohr of the State Highway Patrol suffered a fracture of the right elbow and injuries occurred to the wife of the driver of another car, Mrs. Martha Neeley of Independence.

Cpl. Stohr noted a car which passed a string of five cars on a hill and began pursuing the violator with the red light flashing and siren sounding. As they went down the highway the rear of a string of vehicles slowed down to permit the vehicle being chased to get back on the right lane of traffic when he noted an oncoming car. When the car cut back in line, Cpl. Stohr, also seeing the oncoming car, endeavored to swing to the right, but his patrol car caught the right rear fender of the slowing car, as Stohr went on to the right shoulder causing the patrol car to spin across the highway in front of a 1964 Chevrolet coach driven by Morris Neeley, 65.

The car which Stohr's car "clipped" was a 1961 Oldsmobile sedan driven by Ernest Brown, 76, of Barnett. The Oldsmobile had slight damages.

The car being pursued was headed south on the highway and the Neeley car was headed north at the time of the accident.

Extensive damages resulted to the 1967 Chrysler sedan driven by Cpl. Stohr and to the Neeley Chevrolet.

Mrs. Neeley suffered a contusion on her head. She was taken from the Bothwell Hospital to the office of Dr F E. Manatt for treatment, while Cpl. Stohr was taken to the Bothwell Hospital and treated by Dr. Elliott Braverman.

The Neeley car was towed to Sedalia by Parks wrecker and the Chrysler patrol car towed in by Bacon's wrecker.

Sgt. Sam Wollard, of the State Patrol, investigated the accident. Trooper Charles Pieper assisted at the scene.

No injuries resulted in a two car accident on Route C, two miles south of 16th Street, at 8:40 a.m. Saturday.

Involved were a 1962 Cadilac, driven west by Howard W. Isgriggs, 33, Route 2, Sedalia, and a 1966 Ford Pick-up truck, driven south by William H. Thomas, 63, Route 2, Sedalia.

According to the Highway Patrol, Isgriggs brought his car up to the stop sign and then pulled into the path of Thomas.

The right rear of Isgriggs' auto was struck by the rear end of the Thomas truck. Extensive damage resulted to Thomas' vehicle, while Isgriggs' car was only damaged minorly. Both cars were removed by the owners.

No one was injured in a two-car accident in the 700 block of South State Fair Boulevard at 12:12 p.m. Saturday.

Involved were a 1962 Ford, driven east on the cross-over lane by Clark Lewis Baker, 46, 2418 Second Street Terrace, and a 1958 Chevrolet driven west on the cross-over lane by Donald R. Finch, 20, 1105 West Main.

Damage was to the left side of the Ford and the left side of the Chevrolet.

A two-car accident occurred at Broadway and Limit at 10:55 p.m. Friday.

Involved were a 1963 Ford, driven west on Broadway by Ray E. Vogel, 19, Route 2, and a 1965 Dodge, driven west on Broadway by Marthia Ann Durley, 621 West Sixth.

According to police reports, the Durley auto was stopped for a red light and was struck in the rear by Vogel's Ford.

Damage was to the right front of the Ford and the right rear of the Dodge.

Herbert W. Hillme, 58, of 700 State Fair, was injured in a 2-car collision about 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of Route V and South 65 Highway.

Hillme was heading north on 65 in a 1964 Plymouth when a 1963 Ford driven south by Mrs. Frances Cardwell, 56, Blackburn, Mi., crossed the centerline and collided with Hillme's car. The Ford was spun into the culvert on the west side of the highway and the Plymouth into the opposite culvert.

Hillme was taken by ambulance to Bothwell Hospital with a head injury.

Mrs. Cardwell reported she swerved left to avoid running into a car that was preparing to turn left onto Route V.

No injuries resulted in a one-vehicle accident at 4:30 p.m. Saturday on 32nd Street, .7 mile east of U.S. Highway 65.

Involved was a 1959 Plymouth sedan, driven east on 32nd by Denver C. Buckner, 68, 204 North Washington.

According to Trooper Richard Joos of the Missouri State Highway Patrol who investigated the accident, Buckner's Plymouth drove off the road on the south side, struck a concrete culvert and continued into a fence.

Bacon's wrecker towed the vehicle in.

The driver involved in a one-vehicle accident at 8:10 p.m. Saturday escaped injury 2.1 miles from the junction of D and J on north U.S. Highway 65.

A 1963 Chrysler, driven south on the new section of a highway not yet open to traffic by Mike Hawkins, 17, 820 West Fifth, was involved.

According to Trooper Joos of the State Patrol, Hawkins came upon the south end of the new highway section and did not see an embankment in time to stop. The Chrysler skidded straight ahead into the embankment, causing the car to flip over onto its top.

Parks' wrecker towed the damaaed car in.

No one was inured in a two-car accident at 710 South Engineer at 4:25 p.m. Friday.

Involved were a 1964 Ford pickup truck, being backed out of a driveway by Cecil Leroy Schick, 45, Route 1, and a 1962 Oldsmobile driven south on Engineer by Herbert S. Wingfield, 82, 1100 East 16th.

The right rear of the Ford and the right side of the Oldsmobile were damaged.

Two cars were involved in an accident at Broadway and Limit at 9:31 a.m. Friday.

Involved were a 1966 Chevrolet, driven north on Limit by Billy Gene Kopp, 38, Gravois Mills, and a 1964 Ford, driven north on Limit by George I. Sanders, 35, 660 East 12th.

According to the police, Kopp stopped for the traffic light and Sanders was unable to stop in time.

The rear of the Chevrolet was damaged in the accident.

Two persons complained of injuries as a result of a two-car accident at 26th and Lafayette at 11:41 p.m. Friday

According to police reports, a 1949 Chevrolet, driven south on Lafayette by Clarence D. Weathers, 59, 501 East 28th, was struck by a 1967 Chrysler, driven west on 26th by James Wesley McKinzie, 1105 East Sixth. Weathers told police that he heard the other car coming and started to stop when he was struck.

Weathers complained of shock and a passenger in his car, Bill Weathers, 33, 501 East 28th, complained of a bump on his head, but each elected to see a doctor on his own.

Police Reports

A young coyote that had been roaming the area near Mill street and the railroad tracks, was shot and carried away by an unknown man sometime Friday morning according to police.

The animal, which had a bounty, had been in the area for some time. The police department had received several reports of the coyote in the area but until now no one had been able to get it.

Gary E. Cummings, Rlute 1, reported to police that a Browning bow and four arrows were stolen from his pickup truck about 7:30 p.m. Thursday while it was parked at 320 East 24th. The items were valied at $85.

Luther McNeal, 203 East Boonville, reported to police that two men shot a coyote Friday at 10:20 a.m. at Mill Street and the Missouri Pacific tracks.

Joe Labille, Route 2, reported to police that someone took 4½ gallons of milk off some of his customers' porches after he delivered their milk Saturday morning. The milk was valued at $2.04.

Donald Cramer reported to police that thieves took 5 gallons of milk off porches in the 600 block of West Fifth after the milk had been delivered about 6 a.m. The milk was valued at $5.50 and belonged to the Meadow Gold Dairy.

O. A. Potter reported to police that someone took 5 gallons of milk from residences in the 1600 block of West Fifth about 6 a.m. Saturday. The milk was valued at $5.40 and belonged to Tullis Hall Dairy.

Oliver Cox, 1510 South Osage, reported to police that someone entered his car while it was parked at the above address and pried the console open sometime Friday night. There was nothing missing. Damage to the console was estimated at $25.

Plans Reunion With Viet Dog

NEW YORK (AP) — A Vietnam veteran is scheduled to hold a reunion Monday with an old friend—a year-old dog who was a pet of several thousand GIs.

Spec. 4 Frank A. Coronato, 22, of Great Kills, Staten Island, will pick up Joe when the freighter Robin Hood docks at Bayonne, N.J.

Coronato, who recently finished a 12½-month tour in Vietnam, told of troubles he had in getting clearance for the dog.

To get the dog ready to come to this country, Coronato said, required "more papers than I did."

Romney

acceptance of irresponsibility as a way of life. There is a growing aimlessness and flabbiness in our American life."

A Republican president is needed, Romney said, "to build a new America," and leadership is needed to "again elevate religion and morality to their position of paramount importance."

Romney told scores of newsmen after his announcement that the No. 1 plank in his campaign platform will be "leadership and the re-establishment of truth and morality in America."

He also said he would remain in office as governor while campaigning.

Painting President Johnson as a man who, regardless of his intentions, is creating increasing government control over American lives, Romney said many of the nation's ills result from "unfulfilled promises, false optimism, and lack of candor."

Defending his open housing proposals, which are in jeopardy in the Michigan Legislature became GOP lawmakers fear voter disapproval if they vote for the bills, Romney asked Republicans at the meeting after announcement if they meant what they said in the Pledge of Allegiance.

"Or do we think that means 'one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all—except Negroes, Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans, Indians, and a few other minority groups?" he asked.

"I say to you in all solemnness and realism—that most Negroes are sitting, waiting to see if we mean what we say in America, or whether they've got to have a national war of liberation in America," Romney said.

Not all the reaction praised Romney. Democratic National Chairman John Bailey, apparently noting seeming contradictions in Romney statements on foreign policy, said, "Since he has been on both sides of every issue, I suggest Gov. Romney start his campaign with a series of debates with himself.

"Such Romney versus Romney debates might give both the public and Gov. Romney some inkling of where he stands on the issues," Bailey said.

Romney mentioned foreign policy in his announcement, saying it lacked "no clear positive purpose," but he declined to elaborate, promising to deal with this and specifics of the Vietnam issue "at a later date."

This Week In Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Price increases and a renewed demand for a quick tax boost drew attention this past week to the problem of inflation.

Higher prices were announced by some companies for steel wire and railroad materials, copper and brass tubes, and nylon carpet yarn.

William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, reiterated his contention that higher income taxes are needed to combat inflation.

U.S. Steel Corp., the No. 1 producer, announced it will raise prices on some types of wire and various materials sold to railroads by "less than 3 per cent," effective Nov. 27.

The company said the products involved represent about 3 per cent of its total shipments.

Some other major producers said they were studying the move.

U.S. Steel's action was another in a series of selective price increases this year involving steel plates, steel for making cans, bars and tubular products which represent more than 25 per cent of the industry's shipments.

Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corp. followed half a dozen other copper fabricators which earlier boosted prices of copper and brass tube products. The Phelps Dodge raise was 4 cents a pound.

Phelps Dodge said the increase was made to "partially compensate for the cost of obtaining copper from nonproducer sources." About 95 per cent of domestic copper production has been cut off since July 15 by a miners' strike.

Du Pont Co. raised the price of all types of its bulked continuous filament nylon carpet yarn 10 cents a pound.

The Federal Reserve's Martin told the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute in Chicago, "I wholeheartedly support President Johnson's program for a tax increase and also for a reduction of expenditures."

"If inflation is not curbed," Martin added, "we may face a wider adjustment than most of us would like to see and one that may vastly change the nature of our society."

Elsewhere on the business scene, the Federal Reserve reported that industrial production declined for the second straight month during October, mainly because of strikes and a further drop in crude oil production.

The board's index of output last month was 156.2 per cent of the 1957-59 base period, down five-tenths of a point from the revised September level.

Housing starts in October rose to an annual rate of 1,496,000 from 1,429,000 in September, the Commerce Department said. The October level of starts was 4.7 per cent above September and 5.2 per cent ahead of October 1966.

The pace of automobile production was stepped up this past week as Ford spurred its operations after a 46-day strike and Chrysler resumed near normal schedules after a rash of local work stoppages.

Output was estimated at 174,700 passenger cars, up sharply from 130,173 last week but down from 202,984 a year earlier.

No Early Date On Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP)—An effort to advance by two months the date for the receipt of bigger Social Security checks has been turned back by the Senate.

Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., offered the amendment to place into effect in January the increased benefits contained in the Social Security bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

These include at least a 15 per cent boost for everyone now on the rolls with increases up to 59 per cent at the bottom of the scale.

The vote on Prouty's amendment Friday was 55 to 12 for rejection.

The bill approved by the committee sets a March effective date for the hikes which means they would be in the checks due April 3.

Prouty said Congress already is far behind schedule on the legislation. He noted President Johnson, when he sent his Social Security recommendations to Congress early this year, asked that the increases become effective July 1, 1967.

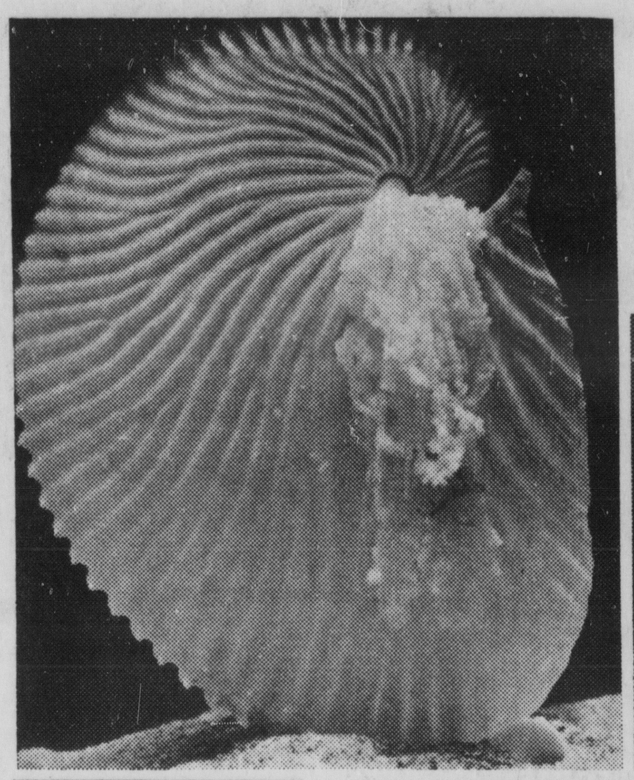
The House, in passing the bill in August, specified that the increases it proposed, smaller than those in the Senate version, should take effect the second month after the measure becomes law. This probably would mean in February.

Prouty said that many persons now are getting only $44 a month from Social Security, or $528 a year.

"These people are suffering, they are going hungry, and they need our help," he asserted.

The minimum monthly amount would be raised to $70 by the Senate bill, and to $50 under the House version.

Prouty said the payroll tax now on the books would yield enough money to pay the higher benefits at least through 1972.



Motherhood

is a many-creatured thing, as these denizens of a Miami seaquarium demonstrate. The paper nautilus, or Argonaut, at left is at a very early stage of the game—a lacy festoon of eggs emerging from her shell. Pride in offspring, as we know it, may not be a factor here, but it appears to be below, where a smug mama porpoise, Bebe, and baby daughter Gena look very happy for the camera.

Present Award To Star Scout

Star Scout Lloyd Richard Reeder, son of Major and Mrs. Lloyd Reeder, Knob Noster, will be presented with the God and Country Award at the Sunday morning 10:45 a.m., Nov. 19, worship service at the Knob Noster Methodist Church.

This is the only award in scouting that is presented during a church service because it is awarded only after a year's work on various church related service projects and much serious study of the church, both on the local level and in the world wide mission of the church.

Various members of Troop 405 will be present for this presentation as well as some of the scout leaders.

Ward and Precinct Map

This map, released by City Clerk Ralph Dedrick, shows the boundary lines of wards and precincts in Sedalia following recent revision by city council. The heavier black lines indicate the boundaries of each ward. Voting places are also illustrated for the upcoming industrial general obligation bond issue for Rival Manufacturing Co. In the First Ward, voters will go to Convention Hall. Second Ward voters will cast their ballots at Washington School, Third Ward, Whittier School, and Fourth Ward, Horace Mann School. Local authorities have stressed that approval of the industrial bond issue will mean no increase in local taxes since the burden of payment of the bonds falls on Rival Manufacturing Co.

Coordinated Approach

Model Cities Program Ties Strings Together

By JACK MILLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "total attack" approach of the new Model Cities program represents in part an admission by the government that its many programs often aren't coordinated, a federal official says.

And local institutions, many of them federally supported, have the same problems, says the director of the Model Cities program, H. Ralph Taylor.

Lack of coordination at federal and local levels "may in part have been encouraged by the way the federal grant-in-aid program has developed," Taylor said in an interview.

He said the programs in 63 cities whose selections were announced Thursday should foster greater cooperation among such independent institutions as schools, welfare agencies, employment services and housing authorities.

"With Model Cities, we're saying that the cities are going to have to pull all these things together," Taylor said.

Authority for the model programs, which will focus on a blighted single neighborhood in each city, will rest with the mayors.

While the government is requiring local agencies to work together, it's requiring the same of itself.

For the first time the government will have a team in each region representing such agencies as the departments of Housing and Urban Development, Health, Education and Welfare, Labor and the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Taylor and other officials have been careful not to hail the Model Cities program as the long-awaited answer to the problems of the cities. "Some federal programs have been seized upon in the past as instant solutions," Taylor said.

The program, which will grant a total of $11 million for initial planning grants to the selected cities, is an effort to find out how to solve the problems of the cities—not to actually solve them.

With about $300 million in operational grants and the aid of all existing federal, state and local government programs, the goal will be to make the target neighborhoods showpieces.

Federal officials admit it won't be easy. The neighborhoods include some of the poorest, roughest, dirtiest, crime-ridden areas of the nation's depressed cities.

But if the effort works as planned, Taylor said, the chosen neighborhoods will become "the laboratories of the nation" for finding by experimentation the means of rebuilding whole cities.

Cities not among the 63 chosen from 193 applicants still have a chance to get in on the program, federal officials emphasize. A second round of cities—expected to be about the size of the first group—are to be selected later. Details on applications are to be announced soon.

IN THE NEWS

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Three muskrats have been trapped by city employes at the Gene Field Sewage Lagoon, Charles Young Jr., city water pollution control director, said.

Permission to trap the animals was obtained by the city after it was found the muskrats were digging in the wall of a dam which holds water in the lagoon.

Most Dangerous Shark

The great, white shark is the most dangerous of all sharks. Not only does it maim or kill bathers but, without provocation, it will sometimes attack small boats.

Outgrow Old System

New Thinking on State Water Rights

By LARRY HALL
Associated Press Wrter

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The troublesome questions involving Missouri water rights and usage are getting more complex as time goes on.

For years 31 eastern states, including Missouri, have based their water policies on the old English common law doctrine of riparian rights.

In simple terms, this means the owner of land along a stream may take and used as much water as he wants so long as he doesn't impair the equal rights of his downstream neighbor.

But in times of drought and in a period of rapid industrial development along the rivers, the riparian rights doctrine is not flexible enough to meet all situations. Each problem case that arises has to be settled by separate litigation.

In contrast, the 17 western states where water is scarce, have from the first adopted some form of the prior appropriation doctine, sometimes referred to as "first in time, first in rights." In other words, "the fustest gets the mostest."

In the last legislature, the State Water Resources Board offered a bill that would take the first step toward bringing some order out of the water chaos.

Basically it retained the doctrine of riparian rights and set a system of priority usages, with domestic use of water coming first, naturally.

The bill failed after a Senate committee drafted a substitute of its own, but is expected to be presented again in the 1969 session until at least a start is made on knowing who is using what water and what kind of usage is being made of it.

Now two agricultural econonomists from the University of Missouri—Donald R. Levi and Dr. Coy G. McNabb —have come up with a new idea. Their views were published in the November-December issue of "Business and Government Review", a publication of the School of Business and Public Administration.

They suggest a possible solution for Missouri would be to "make the water right salable separate and apart from the land," opening the way to use of water on other than rpiarian (streamside) land.

"If made completely marketable this would allow the market mechanism to place the water right in its most profitable use. Those who would use the water more profitably, regardless of location, would bid more for it."

They say this would provide a flexible system that would encourage private capital investments.

"This should be a decided improvement," they suggest, "by encouraging the shift of water from lower to higher valued uses. A system which gives investors the right to a definite supply encourages development and use because it gives some assurance that the resource will be available when needed."

What they do not say is that such a system also could lead to complete monopolization of water use in a watershed.

Can't you just hear the howls that would go up from landowners along the streams and from the legislators who would reflect these howls in being asked to pass the necessary enabling laws?

It sounds a little like the Texas system, where mineral rights can be sold as well as the land above which the minerals lie—for example oil.

Clifford L. Summers, executive director of the Water Resources Board, says the board has given no consideration to the Levi-McNabb theory. But it was clear that he took a dim view of the whole idea.

He said the first step must be to find out who is using water and the use being made of it—so both the riparian owners and the state will know where our surface water is going.

This would require some kind of a reporting or permit system, with ample protections built in for present water users.

And Summers promised that such a bill will be tried again in the next regular legislative session until the public and the legislators become fully acquainted with the need for such action.

Meanwile, speaking of water, Congress has completed action on a public works bill that will provide $47,350,000 for Missouri water projects for fiscal 1968. That is $2,730,000 more than the President's budget recommendation.

It includes such items as $10 million for the Kaysinger Bluff reservoir, $3 million for the Clarence Cannon reservoir on Salt River, $834,000 for the Pattonsburg project in the North Grand basin, $450,000 fot the Meramec Park reservoir, $4,155,000 for the St. Francis basin in southeastern Missouri, $6 million for flood control in the St. Louis area, $200,000 for the Smithville reservoir north of Kansas City and $10.7 million for the Stockton reservoir in the Osage river complex.

Most of these are flood control projects but the big reservoirs also have built in recreational benefits, now a substantial factor in figuring the benefit-cost feasibility ratios.

WHAT GOES UP usually comes down—and in this case but hard! Ballerina Janet Karin of the Australian Ballet Company had her ups and downs in rapid succession recently at Sydney's Tivoli Theater. Left, Janet and partner are airborne—all grace, form and verve. But seconds later, right, disaster!

Can Buy Drink

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fifty-eight years of prohibition against mixed drinks in Tennessee ended when John Chiles, a restaurant manager, poured a scotch and soda for a customer.

The 1967 Tennessee Legislature enacted a law allowing residents of the state's four largest counties to vote on sale of mixed drinks. Nashville residents approved the sale by 10,000 votes.

DIDN'T CHECK SPEAKER'S OPINIONS

NEW DELHI (AP)—The new Delhi Insurance Institute invited the wrong man to speak to them—Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai.

Desai told them "I do not believe in having a secured life anytime. The most insecure life is really a secure life."

Fortunately, he added that most of this applied to himself and he would be happy if everyone else in India were insured.

May Form Sedalia Art Group

A small group of Sedalians is attempting to create an "Arts Council" for Sedalia and has gained enthusiastic endorsement from Mayor Ralph Walker, who Wednesday mailed a number of letters announcing the date for a local meeting on the subject.

In the letter, the mayor said:

"For some time there has been interest evidenced concerning the creation of an Arts Council for Sedalia. There are many fine programs in the areas of music, drama, and art which are available to our community through the State Council on the Arts. We have not been able to participate in these programs since Sedalia has never had an Arts Council."

Mayor Walker said that a group of interested Sedalians planned to meet at 8 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Carl Schrader, 715 West Third, to discuss the subject and possibly make arrangements for establishment of the council.

According to the letter Miss Carol Pfander, associated with Vanguard Theatre, a State Arts Council sponsored group, and a coordinator of Extension Concerts, will be here for the meeting.

A representative of the State Arts Council has also been invited to attend, Walker said.

The mayor told the Democrat-Capital that many smaller communities, such as Slater, have arts councils. Walker said the size of the city is no handicap in establishing such an organization.

"The program affords much talent that Sedalia could take advantage of," Walker said.

Can the Pony Express Find Happiness Today?

While most of the United States has been busy zooming into the Jet Age, the Post Office has managed to mark time in the Pony Express era. Postmaster General O'Brien hopes to change all that. Noel Grove tells you how on today's

By NOEL GROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Machines that read handwriting, letters sent electronically within seconds, and a corporation to replace a government department.

That's the talk in the United States Post Office these days, where a long-tardy revolution in the mails is toddling in its infancy. Everyone, including the postal people, concedes it's about time.

In a period when the air industry has advanced from the Spad to the 707 and personal hygiene has progressed from Grandpa's Lye Soap to five-day deodorant, the U.S. Post Office has gone from sorting mail by hand to . . . sorting mail by hand.

And PO officials feel that neither rain nor sleet nor increased mail rates are likely to change things much, under the present structure. Their present hopes lie in the proposal by Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien to turn the Post Office Department over to a government-owned corporation.

Though generally well-received, the proposal, now under study by a presidential commission, has also been widely misinterpreted by many who thought "corporation" meant private enterprise. There's no talk of an industry-owned postal system, assure postal officials. Forget the possibility of postmarks touting slogans such as "Better Mailing—Through Chemistry."

"We're speaking in terms of a government-owned corporation resembling TVA," said the postmaster general in an NEA interview, "but I really don't like to use TVA as an example because it's a much smaller operation."

POSTMASTER GENERAL Lawrence O'Brien, who would like to turn his department into a government-owned corporation, looks over some of the hardware he hopes will help modernize the postal system.

One advantage of a corporation, O'Brien suggested would be the availability of funds now badly needed for modernization, through the issuance of bonds to provide a capital fund.

As it is now, Congress makes all appropriations to the department, but revenues from postal rates go directly into the Treasury, not the Post Office. And in these times when the hue and cry for federal purse-tightening is at its loudest, extra funds for postal reform are hard to come by, although a record amount for research and development was allotted by Congress this year.

"Say we need $1 billion a year for modernization of facilities across the country," O'Brien said.

"Congress isn't going to allot us an extra $1 billion when they have all the other departments to account for."

Some of O'Brien's strongest critics agree that managing the mails is one of the most frustrating jobs in the government. But many still oppose the corporation idea on the basis of practicality and even sentimentality.

"There are a number of laws which do not allow O'Brien to move the mail in the most efficient manner," said a mail users' lobbyist. "But I doubt that Congress is going to divest itself of a constitutional authority it has held throughout the history of the Post Office."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) says his main objection to the corporation is sentimental, although he questions the practicality of it as well.

Painting a verbal picture of local Post Offices as folksy, community gathering places in America's hinterlands, the senator said, "A corporation sounds like such a cold-blooded type of operation. There's such a feeling of warmth between the local postmaster and the people under our present system that you just wouldn't have if he was working for a corporation.

"And what about the rural mail service which pays only 30 per cent of costs and is 70 per cent public service? Would a corporation continue to operate such a service?"

Corporation or department, the Post Office is headed for an avalanche of letters, parcels, cards and flats. Already, the nation that constitutes only six per cent of the earth's population staggers under half the world's mail. And predictions are for a 20 per cent increase in that burden within a few years.

Meeting it will take money and modernization. Employes flipping items of mail in cubbyholes can only result in more fiascos such as the eight million-piece pile-up in Chicago last Christmas.

Ideas for advanced technology in the Post Office exist, but participants in that technology are scarce. The department has turned to private industry and universities, asking their help in postal research.

Mechanical needs include equipment such as a high-speed culler for separation of letters of assorted mix. Already installed in several large cities are machines capable of reading typewritten zip codes and advanced development of the same machine that can read handwritten addresses is slated for 1971.

Zip code itself has helped but not enough. A mass advertising campaign has resulted in a 74 per cent usage on all mailed items, according to an O'Brien aide.

In the way-out department, basic research is beginning on facsimile mailing, in which letters would be sent electronically. After being deposited at the Post Office, they would be opened electronically, transmitted to the desired location and reproduced there on another piece of paper, which would in turn be electronically sealed in an envelope. Letters could be sent thousands of miles within seconds and the contents never seen by the human eye while in transit.

Though such thinking is more in step with the modern world than manual handling and five-day delivery, facsimile mail is still in the postal dream world.

For now, that Pony Express rider on the Post Office Department's official seal seems more a trademark than a historic memento.

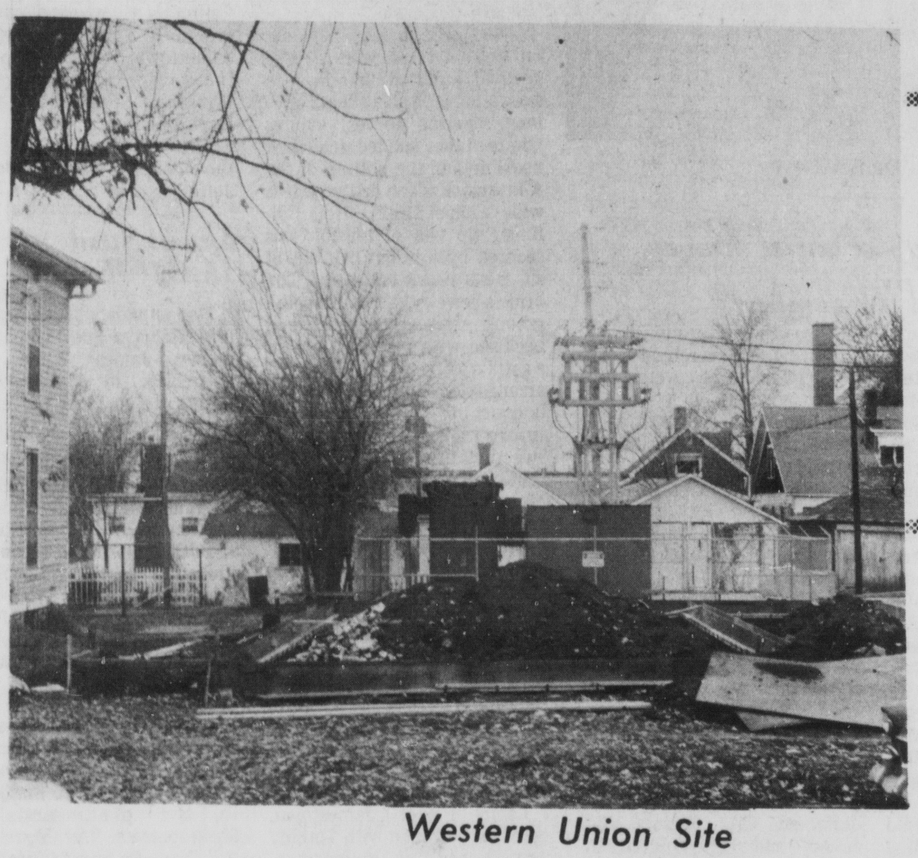
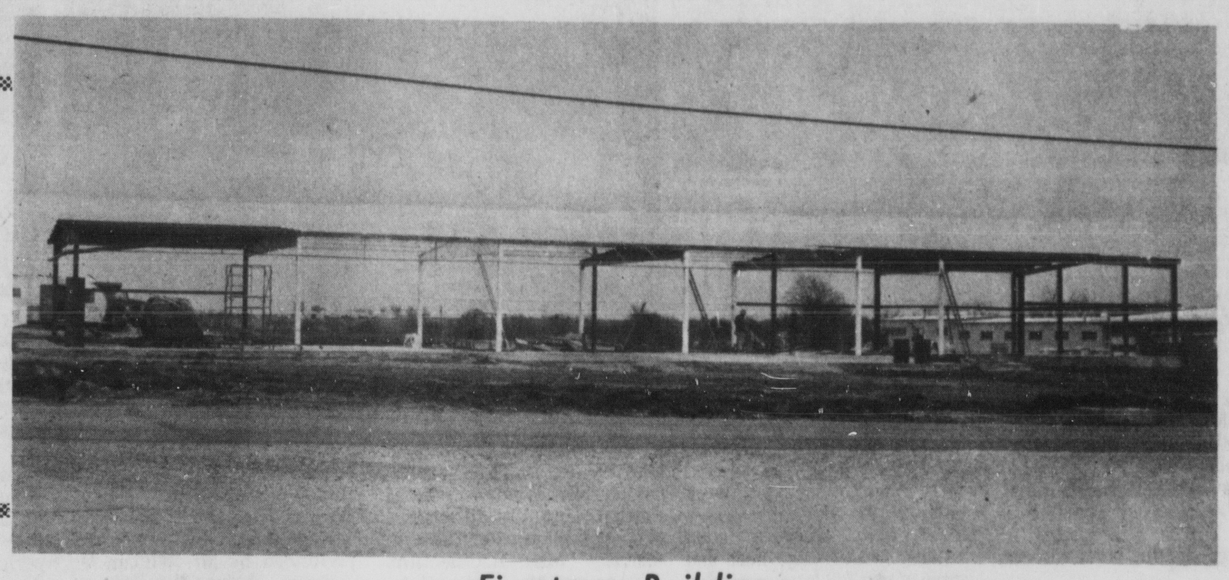
Small Businesses Thrive



Western Union Site



Firestone Building

By PETER F. DANIELS

Generally the big new businesses entering a city receive large amounts of publicity and in the rush the smaller, more conservative concerns are over-looked.

There's nothing malicious about it. It just happens. Still, people often wonder, idly, why this particular piece of land is being excavated, or just what that new foundation is for. Quite often it's assumed that some one is building a new home.

NEW PROJECTS

Currently, there are roughly five or six construction projects underway in Sedalia and all of them involve small business concerns. Some established firms, such as Leftwich and Lee Motors, Inc., on west Broadway, are expanding.

And the city itself has projects underway almost constantly. Probably the biggest construction project at the moment involves the installation of a new storm drain on Quincy between 14th and 15th.

That particular area has been plagued for years by flooding everytime a heavy rainfall dumped inches of water on Sedalia.

EVERYONE BENEFITS

Local teen-agers will probably take interest in the fact that a new business, known as the Pizza Hut, Inc., is in the process of being constructed at 1425 South Limit. Plans for the 30-by-50 foot structure were drawn up by Burke and Kingdom, architects. The project may cost $31,000 to complete. Lantz Enterprises, Topeka, Kan., is the prime contractor.

For those who like to send messages in a hurry, a Western Union Telegraph office will at a future date be located at 214 West Seventh in what will be known as the Bill Schien building. It will be a one-story block structure with brick trim, with an estimated valuation of $16,400. It is being built by Temple-Callison Construction Co.

EXPANSION WIDESPREAD

The Rival Manufacturing Co.'s project here is also scheduled to begin—once Sedalia voters decide the question of an industrial general obligation bond issue Nov. 21. Rival plans to add at least 150 new employees to its payroll. The bond issue is receiving widespread endorsement from local business leaders.

As mentioned, some established firms are expanding. Lower Moving and Storage, for example, is building a storage-warehouse at 1501 Thompson Blvd., just north of the Legion Hall. The building, estimated to cost $28,000 will measure 168 feet by 60 feet and is also being constructed by Temple-Callison.

Anyone who has driven past the west Sedalia city limits has seen the framework of the new Firestone Retail Store leap into the sky. And further out, Olin Conductors' future building is also taking shape.

While the larger firms may continue to make the big headlines, it should not be forgotten that the smaller firms are as essential a part of the communities economy as the giants of industry.

Miss Mary Ann Tope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verne Tope, Windsor, and Mr. Larry Gene Fosnow, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fosnow Jr., Windsor, were united in marriage the evening of Saturday, November 11, at eight o'clock, in the bride's home.

The Rev. Talmadge Hale, Sedalia, performed the double ring ceremony before a setting of pink mums and frost white gladiola entwined with greenery.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a three piece blue capri suit. Her all white bridal bouquet was an arrangement of white carnations, centered with a white orchid.

Miss Linda Fosnow, maid of honor and sister of the groom, wore a rose pink dacron knit dress accented by her corsage of pink and white carnations. Mr. Wayne Binder, Peculiar, acted as best man.

The bride's mother chose a blue two piece knit suit, highlighted with a corsage of pink mums. The mother of the groom selected a three piece green suit accented with a fall corsage of bronze mums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The bride's table was decorated with a net cloth over pink, centered with a four tiered wedding cake displaying on the top tier a miniature bride and groom.

Mrs. Wayne Binder and Mrs. Bob Fosnow served, with Mrs. Talmadge Hale and Miss Lina Faye Hale in charge of the gifts.

The bride is a 1965 graduate of Windsor High School and is presently employed at Farmers and Merchants Bank, Green Ridge. The groom is a 1964 graduate from Lincoln High School, recently returned home from service in the Army, and is now employed with Reno Construction Co.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Windsor.

Youth Gets A Term In Reformatory

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—A youth who allegedly shot and permanently paralyzed a bus driver in a 1966 robbery was sentenced Friday to a federal reformatory until he is 21 years old.

Fletcher L. Jones was 14 at the time of the robbery and neither Kansas or Missouri chose to prosecute him. The shooting was in Kansas and a stolen car was taken into Missouri.

Jones pleaded guilty Oct. 20 to a federal charge of taking a stolen car across a state line.

Now 16, Jones got the maximum sentence from Judge Arther J. Stanley Jr. in U.S. District Court. When Jones leaves the reformatory Nov. 5, 1972, he will be free from further prosecution, Judge Stanley said.

Will Offer Swahili In High School

NEW YORK (AP) — A Bronx high school plans to offer a course in Swahili—spoken by 100 million Africans—because its principal says it will give Negro youths a "sense of pride" in their heritage.

This first for the city school system came as the result of discussions a few days ago between C. Edwin Linville, the principal of William Howard Taft High School, and Leonard De Champs, a 17-year-old senior. De Champs is active in the Harlem chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality.

About half of the schools 4,800 students are Negro.

The two said Friday the fully accredited elective course would be given beginning in January if enough students sign up for it.

"Anything which students can identify with and feel deeply involved in is a good thing," Linville asserted.

Major War Film Near Completion

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The first major film about the Vietnam war is nearing completion, thanks to the bulldog determination of actor-director John Wayne.

So far he has endured corporate indifference, a couple of vexing ailments, Army restrictions, the vagaries of Georgia weather and the taunts of anti-war zealots. Next week, after expending $4.5 million and four months of shooting time, he expects to complete "The Green Berets."

After 13 weeks at Ft. Benning, Ga., Wayne came back to Warner Bros.-Seven Arts Burbank studio for final scenes. Why the return?

"Georgia doubled fine for Vietnam until fall started and the leaves began turning. You don't get those reds and golds in the Vietnam foliage, so we decided to finish up at the studio."

The husky actor came back with a touch of laryngitis, acquired from three weeks' of night work in temperatures as low as 26 degrees. Rain often plagued the company, but Wayne kept working. He turned 60 last May but seems to have withstood the rigors of double duties.

Taking a rare break from production matters, Wayne discussed the stormy history of "The Green Berets." Last year the film was announced as a Universal production; later Wayne and his Batjac production moved the project to Warners. What happened?

"I guess those guys at Universal were scared of it," said Wayne. "They think they can run the picture business by computers. Well I got news for them: It can't be done.

"I was in a meeting with them when they started making a big fuss over a $100,000 item in a $4.5-million budget. I figured they couldn't be very enthused about the project, so I let them off the hook. They grabbed at the chance."

The feeling in Hollywood is that many studios have shied away from Vietnam subjects on the grounds that it is an "unpopular war." Wayne has an answer to that:

"What the hell war hasn't been unpopular?"

After Wayne purchased the Robin Moore novel, "The Green Berets," he went to the Pentagon to seek cooperation on filming. He admitted that changes have been made, since the book was not entirely popular with the brass.

The Pentagon agreed to help Wayne, but military cooperation is not the same as in the World War II and postwar era, when studios could stage vast battle scenes with real troops.

"We received good treatment at Benning — within the letter of the law. We could use the Army's equipment if it wasn't tied up in training and could shoot in areas that weren't being used by troops. But the soldiers weren't available to us — unless they could get a two or three-day pass. Then we paid them regular extra pay."

Wayne was directing the film by himself, with assistance from action expert Ray Kellogg. Then the new management of Warners-Seven Arts sent Mervyn Leroy to help Wayne.

"Somebody pushed the panic button," he grumbled. "What happened was that I got an eye infection and with all the rain down there I couldn't get rid of it. Naturallly I couldn't take any closeups of myself. When the brass saw I wasn't taking closeups, they panicked and sent Mervyn.

"If it had been anyone else but Mervyn I would have walked off the picture. But he has been very helpful in watching the scenes I'm in. Still, a picture has to be the concept of one man, and it's the way I want it — rough, with plenty of action."

Wayne is unconcerned about any possible furor that might be caused by American opponents to the Vietnam war.

"Seems to me that those who are against the war are an articulate minority who attract more attention than their numbers would warrant," he said. "You always see the same names — Joan Baez, Dr. Spock, people like that.

"Hell, I suppose the so-called liberals will find some one way to get at me. They did it with 'The Alamo,' when they quoted me as saying anyone who didn't go to see the picture was unpatriotic. If they can get at me with "The Alamo,' they'll sure as hell find a way to do it with 'Green Berets.' "

Mental Anguish From a Haircut

SPOKANE, Wash (AP) — Stanley Jackowski, 27, contends the shearing of his long hair while in Spokane County jail recently amounted to "mental torture," but has failed in his first attempt to file a $10,000 damage claim against the county.

Jackowski, who lists his home as the Tolstoy Peace Farm near Davenport, Wash., was arrested on a highway, charged with attempted hitchhiking. He was jailed and his hair was trimmed and his beard shaved.

Jackowski said in his claim he felt "keen emotional loss because of the haircut." County officials told him to consult an attorney to revise his claim form.

Bite the Hand That Defends

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — The Neighborhood Legal Services Association says it may have to move its Hill District office because of a series of burglaries. Five typewriters have been stolen.

Attorney H. David Rothman said the man arrested in the burglaries sought free legal help from the association.

"We don't think we'll be able to help him out," said Rothman, association director, explaining that it would be conflict of interest.

Blame Red Tape

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa Conservation Comission returned a citizen's $23 cash gift for a small lake project.

"We appreciate the gesture but such a gift just has to be processed by too many offices," a commission spokesman said.

Johnson Prefers New Mike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has found for his televised news conferences a not-so-secret weapon in a gadget called the lavalier microphone.

Television professionals have been using them for years. They're nothing more than small mikes that hang around the neck by a cord.

For all his TV exposure during four years in the White House, however, Johnson had not tried one out until Friday at his live television-radio news conference.

Johnson and his aides were elated with the results. Most Washington reporters who saw him either in person or on the TV screen agreed he had turned in an improved performance. And the President was delighted to receive a growing stack of congratulatory telegrams which hailed his new TV personality.

By using the around-the-neck microphone, Johnson was able to desert the rather formidable rostrum behind which he normally has stood in rather wooden fashion. Wired for sound, he could roam about, discard his eyeglasses and wave his arms and fists for emphasis.

For four years, Johnson has been searching for a way to hold televised news conferences in a manner that would not invite invidious comparisons with his articulate and photogenic predecessor, John F. Kennedy.

It seems likely he will henceforth adopt the lavalier microphone as his own personal contribution to the ever-changing format of presidential news conferences.

"He'll never be tied to a rostrum again," one aide predicted.

Because of his new freedom of movement, Johnson seemed to many observers to be much more relaxed and, in fact, to be bringing into the nation's living rooms the Johnson who, in the past, had been seen only by a few in private conversations.

In one sense, the whole country got a tube's eye view of the "Johnson treatment."

Many thought it likely that Johnson, in the 11-plus months remaining before the 1968 election, will be much more willing to hold television-radio news conferences. Until Friday, he had held only three such all year.

Oldtimers Know

Weather Prediction Not All Scientific

By PATRICK CLARK

Weathermen? Who needs them? According to some of the oldtimers in the area there must be at least 1001 ways to tell if it is going to be a hard or easy winter. The ways range from the thickness of animal fur to the condition of crops.

Predicting the weather through unscientific ways is probably as old as time itself. But, even now in the 1960's, a lot of the oldtimers still think they can forecast the severity of winter in a variety of different ways.

One oldtimer who is a member of the "Spit and Chatter Club" at the courthouse advised looking at the fuzz on a caterpillar. "If the fuzz is heavy, it should be awfully cold," he said, "but if it's not, then it shouldn't be too bad a winter."

Another club member suggested looking at the corn shucks, "if the shuck is heavy, the winter will be bad, if it's not, then you don't need to worry about the wood pile. It worked more often time than it didn't," he said.

Besides telling which way is north, moss can also predict the winter's strength, it was said. If the moss is heavy, watch out; if it isn't, then there is nothing to worry about.

Animals also are indicators of the weather, many say. For example, if the fur on a rabbit gets heavy early in the fall, then the winter will be a cold one. If the squarrels start gathering nuts early, the winter will be snowy and windy, many people believe.

Some say the planets also provide signs of the winter's fury. For instance, a light moon indicates an easy winter, a dark moon, the opposite. If the planets are clearly visible to the naked eye, the winter should also be an easy one.

Other ways to tell, oldsters say, include the whiteness of rabbit fur, the time the leaves start to fall, the month when the tropical storms begin, and many more But there is really only one sure fire mehhod.

"The best way to tell what kind of winter we are going to have" said one oldtimer, "is to wait until spring. And after it's all over with, then you can tell for sure."

With the way the weatherman's predictions go at times, it might just be the one best way.

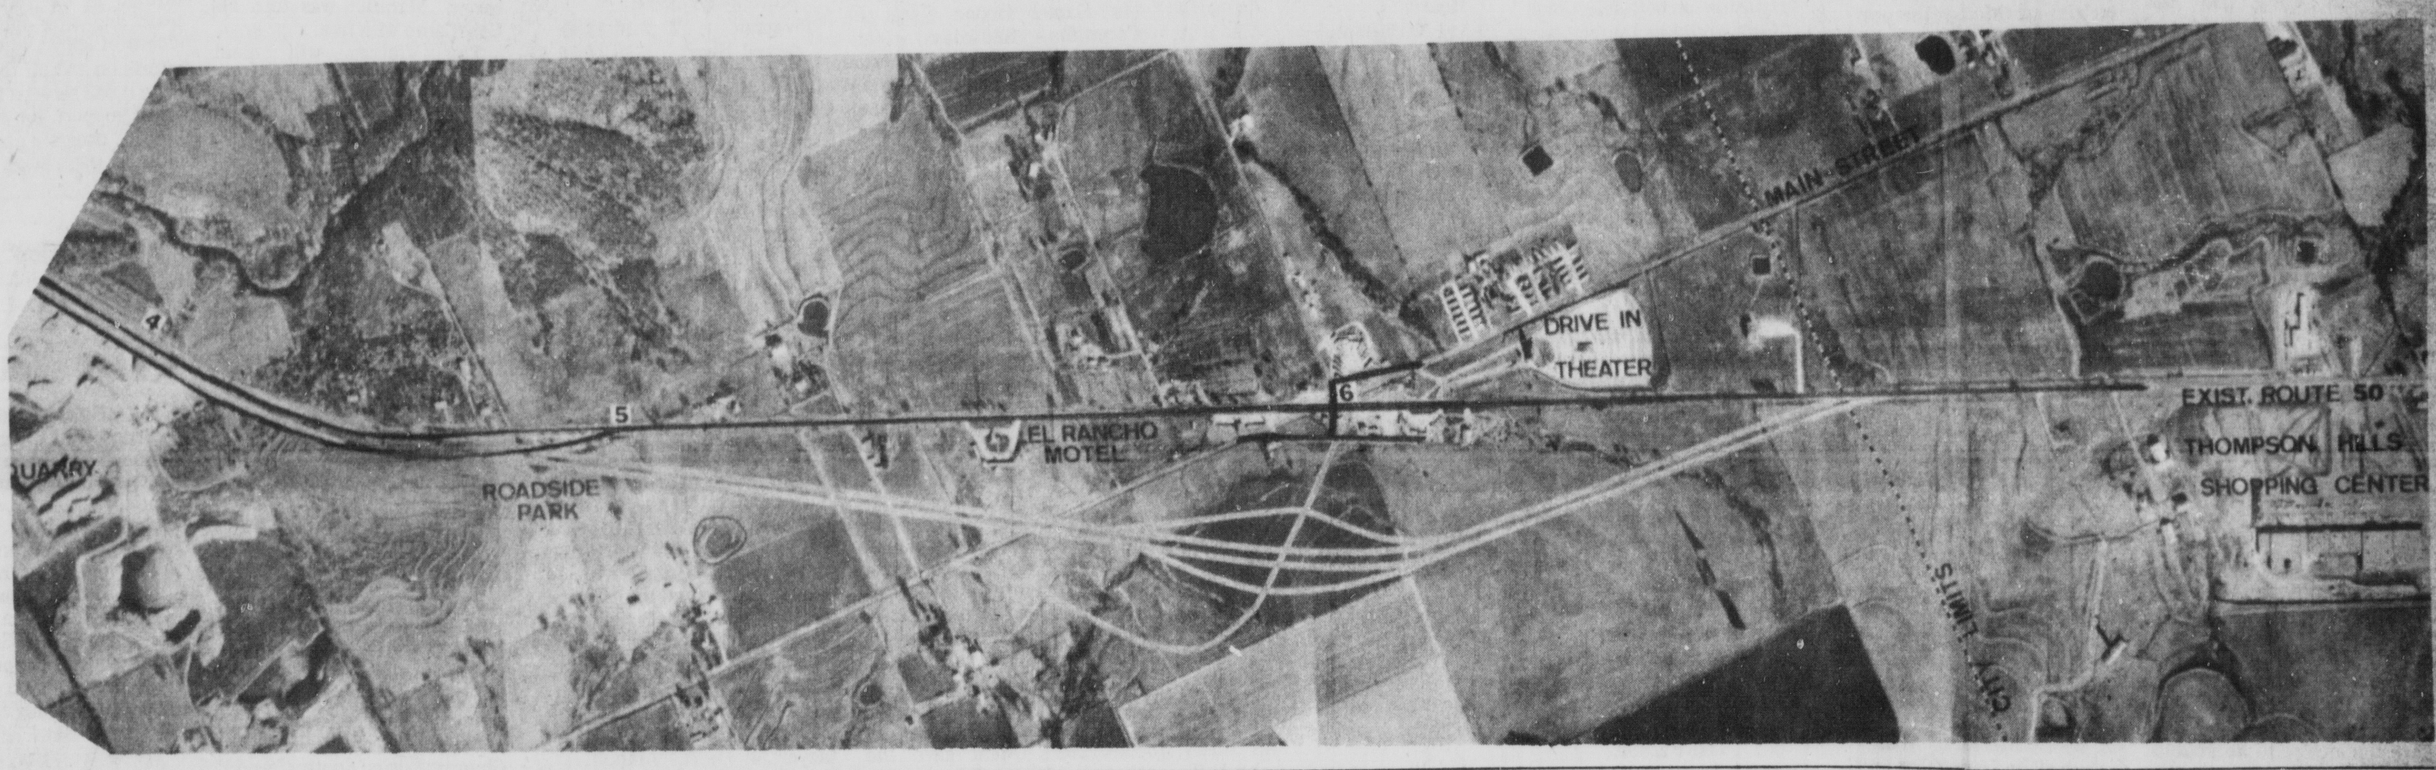
Proposed New Highway

These two aerial maps of West Highway 50 indicate (in dark, even line) the proposed improvements discussed recently here by the Missouri State Highway Commission. As indicated, the new route goes well south of Dresden. Then, from point No. 1 in the top map, the road travels southeast, by-passing the former Black Forest Motel and picks up existing Highway 50 at point No. 3. The section of proposed road from point No. 1 to the area of point No. 5 (in the bottom map) would all be four lanes, divided by a median strip. From Point No. 5, east of point No. 6, the road would still be four lanes, but without the median. As indicated on the bottom map, the Bradford Roadside Park would be eliminated by the new roadway. An area indidated as "1A" in the top map has been pointed out as a possible future location for a new roadside park. The dotted line indicates a Highway 50 bypass going north of Sedalia, but this has not received commission approval yet.



For Johnson, the Only Way Left Is Up

EDITOR'S NOTE—Think you have troubles: Consider the President. He's faced with simple, everyday problems such as the war in Vietnam, riots at home, taxes, inflation and politics, to name just the most outstanding. Outwardly, at least, Lyndon Johnson doesn't seem disturbed by the tribulations. Nonetheless, with the 1968 presidential election fact approaching, there is the major question of how his troubles will effect the vote.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — By any standard of measurement, President Johnson is confronted with a heap of troubles these days.

They have mounted to a point where many people in and out of Washington wonder if, and how, he can recoup his fortunes before the 1968 election.

Some wonder, too, whether multiplying troubles and his slippage in some of the major polls might cause Johnson to decide against running for another term. At this stage, however, the signs are that he will run—the odds are long against voluntary retirement.

Undoubtedly the Vietnam war is Johnson's No. 1 problem—and a major reason for the rising tide of criticism of the administration.

The war has brought unhappiness to many Americans, spawned protest demonstrations at home and abroad—some marked by violence-complicated the government's financial situation, thrown road-blocks against the administration's domestic programs, and strained relations with some allies.

Across the nation, pollsters have reported people complaining about Vietnam policy, about riots, inflation and the possibility of higher taxes. It's clear that many blame Johnson.

In the political spinoff, a recent Gallup poll reported that Johnson would be unable, if the election were held at that time, to defeat any of three leading Republicans mentioned as possible presidential candidates: Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Michigan Gov. George Romney.

As measured in the public opinion polls, Johnson's popularity is at a low unmatched since President Harry S. Truman in the months prior to the 1948 election - which he won - and again later on.

But in public he reveals no despair. At a Democratic fund-raising dinner Oct. 7 he conceded he was facing mounting difficulties, but he said: "In the crises of this hour — and all the others we have faced since we began — there are plenty of recommendations on how to get out of trouble cheaply and fast. Most of them come down to this: Deny your responsibilities."

And, talking not at all like a man thinking about standing aside in the 1968 election, he added: "So tonight I tell you that I will work as hard as a man can work for his country, and I will do everything in my power to build a record for the Democratic party that America will embrace 13 months from now."

In politics, many Democrats who face election campaigns next year are concerned about their prospects on a ticket headed by the President. Three years ago, many of these same people fell over each other grabbing at his coattails. Now some are stand-offish.

Johnson himself is defensive about the present situation, but clearly attempts to put the best possible face on it. Indeed, he goes about his business with an outward air of nonchalance that is downright puzzling to many readers of polls and political tea leaves.

He tells friends he never felt better nor slept more soundly. He remarks that if his hair suddenly seems grayer, it's because he is not plastering it down with hair oil anymore, it's only an illusion.

When he talks about polls, it is to remind visitors that polls fluctuate — up as well as down.

A student of the polls, Johnson takes heart from the dramatic shifts in public sentiment that they sometimes reflect.

BUT THEY THOUGHT A QUESTION

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—They don't play draughts much here anymore.

Draughts, in case your old English terminology is rusty, is a term for checkers.

The Lincoln public libraries invited patrons to return overdue books without fines or questions asked.

Among the 614 books returned during the three-day free period was a volumn titled "Backgammon and Draughts." It's been overdue since February of 1922.

Five Of Eight Games Go To St. Louis Teams

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

It is so seldom we receive the type of letter such as will be following that I felt I should pass it on to Sedalia and Sedalians. It is a letter from the St. Louis Tower Heating and the St. Lou A.C. South Soccer Clubs and also from the Belleville Jaycees regarding their treatment while attending the first annual Sedalia Silver Cup Soccer tournament.

This type of letter makes people really feel good for extending their efforts to make visitors enjoy their visit to Sedalia and realize their efforts have been rewarded with a friendly feeling from their visitors.

I only hope the youngsters and their coaches and managers who are playing this week have as enjoyable a time as those who were here last week.

The letter is as follows:

Letter to the Editor

Sedalia Capital and Democrat

We the coaches of Tower Heating, St. Lou A. C. South, and Belleville Jaycee Soccer Clubs want to publicly thank the wonderful people of Sedalia and the Sedalia Khoury League for inviting us to the grand hospitality of the State Fair City.

Each of us knows the great effort put forth and the consideration extended us at the tournament, this effort caused the finest Tournament any of us have had the opportunity to be a part of.

To the Sedalia Junior Kickers and their fine coach and true sportsman, Jim Koerner, we extend our heartiest congratulations and wish them continued success, except of course against our teams in the future.

Our special thanks to Jim for his consideration and tournament leadership and all those who made possible this fine athletic event. We would be amiss if we did not extend a special thank you to the manager and the employees of the Sedalia Holiday Inn for their untiring service and comfort.

At the same time each of us separately and collectively extend an invitation to your team to visit with us in St. Louis on any trips that might be forth coming and offer any assistance that we can possibly extend.

Again let each of us say thank you and make known our sincere appreciation for the wonderful tournament you folks put on. And may we make known our desire to be invited again to your tournament in the 1968 season.

Sincerely,

Auggue Andrews—Tower Heating

Gene Abernathy—St. Lou A.C. South

Fritz Kroesen—Belleville Jaycees

Again I might say we appreciate receiving these letters and an opportunity to pass them on to our readers.

There was a great satisfaction, Saturday night, in seeing Sedalia's Frank Ervin inducted into the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame at the annual dinner held at the Daniel Boone Hotel. He was inducted along with Ernie Mehl, former Sports Editor of the Kansas City Star, the two living honorees and the late John Edward Wray, former sports editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Our reason is that Frank who is representing one of the largest, if not the largest sport in attendance, Harness racing, comes from the city in which the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame originated. It was back in 1951 at the Missouri State Fair that the first Honoree was honored, Carl Hubbell of Carthage.

The dream of a Sports Hall of Fame was that of Carl McIntyre, who at the time was the publicity director of the Missouri State Fair, later City Editor of the Sedalia Democrat and now in Jacksonville, Mississippi. Carl and I discussed such a project and realized it would be a big chore, but we worked together and with his push it was started and carried on and on through the years at the Fair. After Carl left Missouri, it was chairmaned by Stan Isle of the Moberly Monitor-Index; later Ernie Mehl agreed to take it over when Isle left Moberly, and he is now with the Sporting News at St. Louis.

W.H. Ritzenthaler was secretary of the fair when it was decided that the project was one real importance and bigger than the fair could handle. Thus rather than see it die out, Don Faurot, himself a member of the Hall of Fame, agreed to take it over in connection with his duties at the University of Missouri.

Governor Warren E. Hearnes, with the State Building Committee, agreed to give space in the State Capitol building for the Hall of Fame pictures of the Honorees, and they line a hall on the first floor of the Capitol Building giving distinction to those who have and will be honored in the years to come.

It was a dream of McIntyre and myself and several others to build a building on the State Fair grounds to house the honorees, but the finances could not be obtained. The present location is perfect as thousands-upon-thousands of Missourians and out-of-state visitors tour through the Capitol buildings, and these rows of pictures are continually viewed by these visiting people.

Someday I hope the sportswriters and sportscasters who every year vote the honorees to the Hall of Fame will also place McIntyre's name and picture along with the rest. It was his idea which started it. Maybe a special honor could be placed upon him in the Hall.

Pintos Dominate All-Stars

The California Pinto's, the Tri-County Conference Champions of 1967, placed six players on the offensive and seven on the defensive All-Tri-County Conference teams. Two of California's players have also been invited to play in the St. Louis Globe Democrat All-Star Game.

West of Camdenton a tackle maintained his positio on both selections.

Camdenton had three players on the offensive team and five on the defensive.

Jerry King, Pinto back named to the All-Conference offensive team, had a outstanding season record of 146 carries for 1,290 yards for 8.8 average, while team mate Kent Sullins, a back named to the defensive squad had 90 carried for 945 yards and an average of 10.5.

Asahl, carried 32 times for 103 yards and a per-carry average of 3.2, but his master-minding the team lead them to a great season of nine wins and no losses. He made 96 passing attempts, completed 72, five intercepted for net yards of 874 and 14 touchdowns giving him a 75-percent average.

Of the Tri-County teams, Versailles got two offensive and on defensive position; Eldon one offensive player; Osage ranked one defensive player.

Six-Pointer

Jesse White, 1801 South Beacon, killed this six-point buck about 7:30 a.m. Saturday in Camden County near Climax Springs. The animal was about 70 yards away, White said, when he shot him. Probably the most unusual thing about the kill, according to White, is the fact that he spotted the animal at the same spot he killed one last season. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Honorees Inducted Into Hall

The 1967 induction of honorees for the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame was made at the annual banquet held at the Daniel Boone Hotel in Columbia, Saturday night. Among those so inducted was Frank Ervin, whose fame in sports is harness horse training and racing and whose home was formerly of Sedalia and now of Orlando, Fla.

Ervin, along with Ernie Mehl, former sports editor of the Kansas City Star, now a consultant with the paper's sports department, were the two living honorees to be inducted. The award for J. Ed Wray, pioneer sports editor of the St. Louis Post-Disptach, was accepted by the present sports editor of that newspaper Bob Broeg.

D. Kelly Scruton, sports editor of the Sedalia Democrat-Capital, introduced and made the presentation of the plaque of the Hall of Fame to Frank Ervin, who spoke briefly of his career, and his appreciation of being selected for the honor.

Joe McGuff, sports editor of the Kansas City Star, introduced and made the plaque presentation to his "old boss" Mehl. Mehl gave the principal address of the evening at the hall.

Bruce Rice, KCMO Radio, Kansas City, acted as Toastmaster of the banquet, introducing the prominent guests and honorees of previous years: Don Faurot, 1953, who is now serving as the Executive Secretary for the Sports Hall of Fame; Vernon Kennedy, 1955; George Goldman, 1959; Robert Simpson, 1963; Miss Helen Stephens, 1964, and those at the head table, including Mrs. Ervin, Mrs. Mehl, Mrs. Faurot, and Mrs. Scruton.

Scruton in his introduction read a telegram from Bob Neel, a former M.U. basketball player, now president of the Area Chamber of Commerce of Orlando, Fal., in which he congratulated Ervin along with the best wishes of his thousands of friends. Neel played basketball in 1946.

Messages were also received from many of Ervin's friends including among which was one from Lander Van Grundey, executive Secretary of the Hambletonian Society; Clarence and John Gaines of the Gaines Dog Food Co.; Stanley Hergstein, executive of the Harness Tracks of America Inc., in which he expressed congratulations from the 26,000 members of the United States Trotting Association; and Arthur Eilerman, general manager of the Hinsdale Raceway at Brattlebro, Vt.

More than 100 friends of the honorees were present at the dinner.

Clemson In Major Upset

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Clemson came from behind in a wind-blown game to upset 10th ranked North Carolina State, 14-6, Saturday and close in on its third consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference football title. The title will be decided when Clemson visits South Carolina next Saturday.

A 20-mile-an-hour wind driving up the field was with N. C. State for a pair of first half field goals and with Clemson for its third period touchdown. An early Clemson field goal try was wide.

Quarterback Jimmy Addison passed for 28 yards to halfback Buddy Gore for Clemson's first score. Addison set up the second, a 7-yard dash by Jackie Jackson, with a 27-yard toss to Phil Rogers.

State was driving at the Clemson 30 with less than three minutes left in the game when the wind lifted one of its passes into the arms of Clemson defender Richard Luzzi in the end zone.

The combined records of the teams that Sedalia will face on this road trip are 28 wins, 6 losses, and 6 ties.

Coach Jim Koerner stated, "We may wich we never took the trip, but after the tournament showing I let the boys decide whether to accept the invitation and without exception they said yes. I know they will ready themselves for this test and give their all. These boys have great pride and the Lions Club offered to furnish accomodations as a further example of the great support this town has shown the team."

Lions President Ad Taylor made the announcement of accomodation after the Lion's Thursday night Board of Directors Meeting, "We are thrilled by the success of this team and offer this help as a means of appreciation for their efforts on and off the field, and hope it will serve as a sign of the town support for the Khoury Soccer program here. We're proud of these boys."

Tennessee Wins Over Ole Miss

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Tailback Walt Chadwick passed for one touchdown and ran for another, and Karl Kremser booted two field goals Saturday as second-ranked Tennessee romped to a surprisingly easy 20-7 victory over Mississippi.

The victory, Tennessee's first over Ole Miss since 1958, virtually cinched the Southeastern Conference championship for the Volunteers and made them an odds-on choice for a trip to the Orange Bowl.

Tennessee has only loop games against lowly Vanderbilt and Kentucky standing in the way for its first league title since 1956.

Mississippi's lone score, in the third period, came at the end of a six-play drive that covered 41 yards after a pass interception. Bobby Wade plunged over from the one.

The rest of the game was dominated by Tennessee with quarterback Dewey Warren moving the Vols through the air and Charlie Fulton and Chadwick leading a crushing ground attack.

Fumble recoveries by tackle Dick Williams set up two of the Vol scores. After the first, Chadwick raced for nine yards and a touchdown.

Sooners Clinch Tie For Title

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A 96-yard drive, climaxed by a 30-yard touchdown pass, marched No. 7 Oklahoma into at least a Big Eight title tie and an almost certain Orange Bowl bid with a 14-10 triumph over Kansas Saturday.

The Sooners, trailing 10-0 early in the third quarter scored in the wanning moments as quarterback Bob Warmack found end Steve Zabel in the open for the go-ahead touchdown.

Oranges, sold by the crate load outside the Owens Stadium gates in anticipation of an Orange Bowl bid, rained down on the field.

The final touchdown shattered a Kansas dream which had been masterfully constructed by Bobby Douglass. He guided his team to a 23-yard field goal by Bill Bell in the first quarter and then stepped over from the one-yard line for what appeared to be the clinching touchdown.

But the Sooners, roaring back with their mighty offense, scored with Steve Owens running seven yards on the first possession after the Kansas touchdown.

The only Kansas touchdown came after a Sooner punt attempt which was blocked at the Oklahoma 25 and set Kansas up at the Sooner 19. Douglass, on a fourth and one situation, stepped in behind his right guard with the score.

The victory put the Sooners' Big Eight record at 5-0 with two games remaining. All other teams now have at least two defeats.

The rain of oranges almost cost the Sooners. Officials had warned fans earlier, and after the final barrage officials assessed Oklahoma 15 yards on the next kickoff, giving the Jayhawks field position. Kansas drove to the OU 38 before surrendering on downs.

Oklahoma's touchdown drive began at its own four after Kansas kicker Don Shanklin had booted out of bounds from the Sooner 39.

The Kansas defense, led by ends Vernon Vanoy and John Zook, had paralyzed the Sooners in the first half, yielding only three first downs.

Oklahoma's first signs of life came after Kansas had taken what appeared to be a com manding 10-0 lead. Warmack guided the Sooners on a 77-yard drive for the touchdown, with Owens leaping a tackler to go in for the score.

Mike Vachon kicked the first of two extra points.

On the final drive to glory, Warmack hit Zabel, his tight end, for passes of 14 and five yards at the beginning of the march. Then he hit split end Joe Killingsworth on two occasions totaling 10 yards before sending Zabel deep down the right sideline.

The tight end took the pass in stride as he crossed the goal line.

Garnett Phelps Pass Finds Soph Back

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Sophomore Jon Staggers made a diving finger tip catch in the end zone of a 38-yard Garnett Phelps pass and gave Missouri a 10-7 Big Eight football victory Saturday over Nebraska to keep alive its hopes for the conference crown.

Phelps, a sophomore from Louisville, Ky., came on in the third period when starting quarterback Gary Kombrink was injured.

In the final quarter, Jay Wallace partially blocked a Nebraska punt with the Tigers recovering on the Husker 37. Three plays later, Phelps and staggers teamed up to give Missouri its first lead of the game 10-7.

Nebraska scored early in the first period, moving 84 yards on seven plays. All of the yardage came on four passes by Quarterback Frank Patrick, the last one for 34 yards to Joe Orduna, who wrestled the ball away from a Missouri defender in the end zone.

Wallace kicked a 45-yard field goal, his longest ever, in the second period for Missouri.

The Phelps to Staggers pass, the first touchdown pass the Huskers have given up this season, inspired the Tigers defensively. The fourth period was played primarily in Nebraska territory. A 63-yard punt to the 7 by M.U.'s Steve Kenemore helped keep the Huskers back against their goal line.

The victory ran Missouri's record to 7-2 and 4-2 in the conference. Nebraska is 6-3 and 3-3 in the Big Eight.

Phelps was Missouri's leading passer although completing only one of three aerials in Missouri's ground-oriented offense.

The Tigers rolled up 140 yards on the ground with Staggers the leader with 42 yards in 15 attempts.

Missouri's rock-ribbed defensive unit limited the powerful Huskers to a net rushing total of 11 yards. Actually the Huskers lost 12 yards in the second half.

"Thank God for the defense," Barry Lischner said.

"I have never seen a team rush like that in my life," Nebraska halfback Ben Gregory said.

"There seemed to be more of them coming from everywhere. They're real tough."

It was the second straight game Staggers was the offensive hero.

"Staggers may turn out to be our big-play player", coach Dan Devine said.

The statement was seconded the 56,400 fans at Memorial ium.

Colorado Stays In Contention

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Talented Bob Anderson, a rookie with a poise of a veteran, ran 25 and 29 yards for touchdowns and passed for a third as Colorado kept its football bowl hopes alive with a 40-6 romp over Kansas State Saturday.

Anderson quarterbacked the brawny Buffaloes to four touchdowns and little Dan Kelly to two and a field goal. The tough Colorado defense was led by tackle Frank Bosch and safety Dick Anderson, Bob's brother.

Colorado's Bob Schnitker, an outstanding defensive end, suffered a knee injury and will undergo surgery Monday.

The victory gave Colorado a 7-2 season record. In Big Eight play, the Buffs closed 5-2, with still a chance for a title tie.

K-State is 1-8 and 0-6 in the Big Eight.

On K-State's first play of the game, Little Bill Nossek was hit trying to pass, fumbled and teammate Cornelius Davis recovered in the end zone for a Colorado safety. Anderson got the first TD on a 25 yard sweep. K-State then stopped a 52-yard drive but lost a fumble and Colorado moved 14 yards for a 16-0 lead.

Kelly's 8-yard TD pass to tight end Mike Pruett climaxed a 62-yard push in the second period, and John Farler added a 28-yard field goal.

Larry Brown's 64-yard dash for K-State to the Buff 2-yard line set up a 1-yard TD smash by Davis.

It was the final game of the 46th season in K-State's Memorial Stadium. A new 35,000 seat stadium will be ready next fall.

Colorado's attack rolled up an awesome 473 yards. Both quarterbacks had a big day. Anderson ran for 107 yards in 15 trips and hit seven of eight passes for 54 yards. Kelly ran for 102 on 15 and hit six of 12 for 66.

The Buffs controlled the ball on 82 rushing and passing plays to 47 for K-State. Brown had 76 yards on seven carries and Davis 50 on 21 for K-State.

Halfback Larry Plantz, subbing for injured William Harris, rushed 78 yards on 11 trips while split end Monte Huber caught eight passes for 80 yards.

O.J.'s Late Gallop Beats UCLA, 21-20

Undefeated Season Vanishes For Bruins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California's fantastic O. J. Simpson broke loose with a 64-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter that wrecked the undefeated season for top-ranked UCLA Saturday and sent the Trojans whirling on to the Rose Bowl with a 21-20 victory.

Simpson's sensational run tied the score at 20-20 and Rikki Aldridge kicked the extra point to give the Trojans their first victory over UCLA in three years and atone for their 3-0 loss a week ago to Oregon State.

Executive Director Tom Hamilton of the Pacific-8 Conference made it official that Southern Cal would go against the Big Ten representative in the big New Year's Day bowl game in Pasadena.

A crowd of 90,772 jammed into Memorial Coliseum to see the annual struggle between the crosstown rivals in a game in which UCLA needed either a tie or victory to win the bowl assignment.

Simpson, a junior speed merchant, began his memorable run from the Trojan's 36, ran to the left toward the USC bench, reversed the field, opened the throttle and raced on in with no one touching him.

Equally brilliant was the UCLA quarterback, Gary Beban, who just a minute before had thrown a 20-yard touchdown pass to Dave Nuttall that put UCLA in front 20-14.

But the try for the extra point by Zenon Andrusyshyn was wide to the left and the failuce cost UCLA the Rose Bowl trip and possibly their No. 1 national ranking.

Offense Sparks O-State

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Oklahoma State's long dormant offense sprang to life and the Cowboys spoiled Iowa State's season-ender 28-14 in a Big Eight Conference football game Saturday.

Halfback Larry Goseny led the assault with three touchdowns—including a 42-yard dash from scrimmage—as the Cowboys scored just four points less than they had amassed in their previous seven outings.

While a three-pronged attack of Goseny, quarterback Ron Johnson and fullback Jack Reynolds tormented Iowa State, the OSU defenders handily kept the Cyclones in check.

Iowa State managed only three first downs and 47 yards—all rushing—in the opening two quarters.

The Cyclones had a total of 242 yards, for the game, but much of it came in the late minutes against reserves.

The Cowboys, now 3-4-1 for the season and 2-3 in the Big Eight, scored the first time they had the ball, with Goseny banging over from the one to climax an 81-yard drive.

Goseny also slipped over from the one early in the second quarter, capping a drive from the Cowboy 36, to give OSU a 14-0 halftime lead.

A one-yard keeper by Johnson and Goseny's long run, both in the third quarter, made it 28-0. Goseny's jaunt came on the next play after OSU defensemen Larry Kirkland intercepted a pass by quarterback John Warder and returned it 10 yards to the 42.

Iowa State scored both of its touchdowns in the closing four minutes—on a one-yard run by Ben King and a seven yarder by Warder.

Hillsdale Wins Over Southwest

HILLSDALE, Mich., (AP) — Hillsdale College wrapped up its football season Saturday with a 14-6 victory over Southwest Missouri in a game played in the rain.

The Missouri team scored first with Gary Hampel recovering a blocked Hillsdale punt in the end zone, but Mel Patterson tied it on a 1-yard run for a Hillsdale touchdown.

Phil Warf's extra point put Hillsdale ahead 7-6, and, with five seconds left in the game, Dick Kraatz ran 66 yards for another Hillsdale touchdown, Warf kicking the extra point again.

Hillsdale's final record is 3-5 and southwest missouri is 4-6.

Eight-Man Battle Will Highlight Wrestling

A unique eight-man battle royal will highlight professional wrestling action at Convention Hall Tuesday night.

A five-event program featuring many of the area's hardest-hitting heavyweights has been lined up by Matchmaker Gust Karras.

Individual events will have Ronnie Reed opposing Bob Brown, Ronnie Etchison going against Jack Donovan, Earl Maynard wrestling the Hangman, and Sonny Myers facing Bob Hamby.

With the natural rivalries involved in those events, some fast-paced bruising action is anticipated.

For the team clash, Reed, Etchison, Maynard and Myers will pool resources. They'll oppose what must be one of the Midlands' roughest foursomes in Brown, Donovan, Hamby and the Hangman.

Both Donovan and the Hangman are in the extra-heavy class — each topping 245. Both have a wide variety or roughing devices which they use regularly and with such items as the backbreaker, flying slam and body block have kept themselves near the top of the area ranks.

Etchison and Myers, who began their pro careers together in St. Joseph, are used to working together. Myers has perfected the sleeper hold and Etchison makes use of the abdominal stretch frequently in pursuit of scoring pins.

The other two on each side figure to get in their licks, a fact that should add to the excitement.

Gophers Shatter Indiana

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) —Brawny Minnesota shattered Cinderella Indiana's dream of a perfect season Saturday as Curt Wilson ran for four touchdowns and passed for another to give the Gophers a 33-7 victory for the inside track to the Rose Bowl.

Minnesota needs only to defeat Wisconsin next Saturday to make its third trip to Pasadena in eight years.

Indiana, which had reeled off eight straight victories to gain a fifth place ranking in The Associated Prss college football poll, not only saw its perfect record smashed but also its hopes for the school's first Rose Bowl appearance were dealt a crucial blow.

The Hoosiers must defeat Big Ten leader Purdue this week to qualify for Pasadena. Or the Hoosiers still could go if Wisconsin upsets Minnesota.

Wilson led a revitalized gopher offense which battered Indiana's defense with a punishing ground attack. Only in the second quarter could Indiana contain Minnesota.

Indiana bounced back from a 7-0 halftime deficit to tie the score on a 76-yard drive in 15 plays with a second half kickoff. Harry Gonso scored from one yard out.

Minnesota went back in front 13-7 before the third quarter ended on Wilson's one-yard keeper to cap a 68-yard drive.

Indiana threatened but a drive bogged down at the Minnesota 26 early in the fourth quarter.

After that, Minnesota turned it into a rout. The Gophers drove 79 yards to send Wilson across from the three, then recovered two fumbles on the Indiana 23 and scored both times. Wilson passed 17 yards to Charley Sanders on a deflected pass for one and kept a yard for the other.

No Tax on Honesty. . . YET!

By BETTY CANARY

In the same batch of mail was an anthology of pieces from early editions of Encyclopaedia Britannica, so I thumbed through it, trying to relax after writing the check. Right there on page 47 was an article from the seventh edition (1830) by Professor J. R. McCulloch. He headed his essay, "Taxation of Income Impracticable," which just shows what kind of prophet HE was.

He begins by stating firmly, "It is not, indeed, very likely that any people, not altogether enslaved, would tolerate, in ordinary circumstances, such inquisitorial proceedings . . ."

"Now, now," I said. "That is putting it much too strongly, professor. I am not enslaved. I willingly, nay, gladly pay my taxes."

I cheerfully sorted the mail and what to my wondering eyes should appear but an envelope marked Internal Revenue Service. Ah, I thought, even though more than six months have passed since they received my return, they are sending me a thank you note. My country is grateful, I thought. Gratitude, I thought, is the most noble of all virtues.

It was a bill—a bill curtly informing me that during the black month of April I made a mistake in arithmetic and still owed the government $95.01, the exact price (including tax) of that tweed suit I looked at Thursday. Added to the bill was an interest charge of $2.59.

I thought of asking why the IRS computers were so slow in finding the mistake that I must pay interest and I thought of checking to see if the government has a deadline for billing comparable to my deadline for filing. What I did was write the check.

I was interrupted here by an unearthly groan.

"Why, so far this year I have paid income taxes to both my federal and state governments, and then I paid Social Security, personal property tax, utility tax, phone tax, entertainment tax, luxury goods tax, sales tax and I will freely pay the proposed surtax."

Could I really have heard the professor quoting his article on income tax? "The tax would fall with its full weight on men of integrity . . . It would, in fact, be a tax on honesty!"

"Quiet down!" I pleaded. "We don't have a tax on honesty YET. However, there is one on license plates and liquor and cigarettes and there is a durable goods tax and . . ." I couldn't continue because my mind became clouded when that threshing, churning sound began. Now that I think of it, however, that couldn't have been the professor turning over in his grave.

FAMILY SHOWED GRATITUDE

LOUISVILLE (AP)—C. E. Bohannon, a retired city fireman, noticed a soldier pacing nervously back and forth in front of the bus station.

Bohannon asked what was wrong and was told the soldier had lost his wallet and couldn't get to his home at Florence, Ky.

Bohannon took out the price of a ticket and handed it to the soldier, who asked his name.

A few days later, Bohannon got his money back along with a country ham—a gift from the soldier's grateful family.

Former Vice-President Richard Nixon said at a press conference in Madison, Wis., Friday, that he would not accept the number two spot again if he does not get the Republican nomination for President in 1968. (UPI)

News Briefs

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The car thief apparently didn't bother to check the contents of the blanket-wrapped bundle beside him on the front seat.

Mrs. Celeste Christian, 26, a nurse, had left her infant son, Artie, 2 months, asleep on the front seat while she went to a babysitter's home to pick up an older son Thursday.

The car was stolen while she was in the house. It was abandoned some 10 minutes later.

Baby Artie was unharmed.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Pietro Lombardo has been sued for $160,000 on grounds he drove his pickup truck through the roof of a house.

William and Ora January of Reno complained Thursday that the truck woke them up when it careened off an Interstate 80 ramp and plunged through their roof.

Mrs. January was seriously injured and the house and its contents were destroyed, the suit filed in Washoe District Court asserted.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — An abandoned cow barn has been converted into a comfortable study hall at a girls orphanage by a group of University of South Carolina students.

"The roof leaked and the walls were cracked," one student said. "There were no windows and you couldn't keep heat in or rain and wind out. We practically rebuilt it."

The structure was reroofed, completely painted inside and out, paneled inside and electrically wired for the Wilkinson Home for Girls this week by members of Phi Delta Theta social fraternity.

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Oregon officials say Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill. may be on the state's presidential primary ballot.

"He is one of the most impressive men I've met, and he has made a terrific impact on Portland," said Secretary of State Clay Myers, a Republican who was with Percy in Portland and in Salem Thursday.

"I told him that as a noncandidate he is creating his own problem. He is having such an effect that I may just have to put him on the ballot," said Myers, who by law must place on next May's state primary ballot all the persons he believes are genuine presidential or vice presidential candidates.

NEW PORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A University of California student is free on $350 bond after allegedly scoring a bull's eye on a Marine Corps recruiter's chest with a water balloon.

Ron Pezenas, 20, was charged with disturbing the peace and resisting arrest on UC's Irvine campus. He was reportedly among about 40 students enacting a skit showing Marines forceably evicting peasants from a Vietnamese village.

The balloon, supposedly representing napalm, struck Marine Sgt. Larry Scott, manning a recruiting table on the campus.

Pezenas was released on bond Thursday.

The moon is said to weigh 81 billion billion tons.

Four Years a Widow

JackieRemains In Public Eye

EDITOR'S NOTE — It is four years since the shot that shocked the world, the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. What is life like now for the former First Lady, Jacqueline Kennedy — widow, mother, heiress to the Kennedy magic, "Her Elegance," queen of her husband's Camelot. Who are her friends? How does she keep busy? What is in her future? This look at the life of Jacqueline Kennedy, four years later, finds her still a magical magnet to millions, still very much in the public eye and the public's heart.

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Not long ago Jacqueline Kennedy had her unlisted telephone number changed again.

This time she told the number only to a dozen of her closest friends, in addition to her family, and requested them not to give it away under any circumstances.

"Well, the word got around immediately," says one of her confidants, "and the 12 were under constant fire. By next day probably 44 people had got the number, one way or another. The thing is, she doesn't have a large staff in her apartment, no secretary to reduce the endless amount of phoning."

Thus it appears that four years after her husband's assassination, Mrs. John F. Kennedy is very nearly as much in the public eye as when she was First Lady. Admirers, well-wishers, social climbers, opportunists and cranks will not let alone the heiress to the Kennedy magic, the 38-year-old widow who lives in a guarded Fifth Avenue apartment very much as a dowager queen in exile.

Wherever she goes she quickly becomes the center of admiring and curious crowds. She has developed a sort of personal force field, a friend says, behind which she can act graciously and naturally in public without seeming to be aware of strangers watching every move.

"All she wants is to be left alone," insists another old friend. "She is particularly concerned about her children. She doesn't want them turned into little monkeys posing for pictures."

Caroline, fair with blue-green eyes like her father, will be 10 this month and is, a family friend says, "a complex little girl." She attends the Convent of the Sacred Heart. John Jr., brown-eyed like his mother and nearly 7, goes to St. David's.

But has Mrs. Kennedy, who likes to walk her children to school and who spends much of her time at home, friends say, made a new life for herself by now?

Her intimates seem divided on that point.

One insists: "She is not over the thinking about her life. She became a symbol and a legend and that should be behind her. But she has not yet started a new life."

Another is equally adamant: "She's got pretty much of a life, a quiet little domestic life that centers around her children. It's hard to visualize, perhaps, if you think of her as one who spends her time first-nighting and all, but she's really rather a little homebody. She doesn't go out much at night at all, except especially to attend something."

Much of her entertaining, then, is limited to old friends stopping in for a quiet evening at her 15th-floor apartment that can be reached only by private elevator after a careful screening by Secret Service men in the lobby.

She also gives parties — some say she is developing a salon in the European tradition — attended by new acquaintances in the areas where her interests lie: the more socially acceptable writers and artists and musicians, the fashionable entertainment people, the wittier jetsetters, socialites who can discuss something more profound then their winters at Palm Beach. They are successful, creative, moneyed and good-looking.

Shrugs an old friend: "They are bright, amusing people to know. Hopefully, one or two will become lifelong friends."

Her old friends remain the closest friends: some she knew in childhood, others she and Jack Kennedy made together. And there are always the New Frontiersmen, to whom she is still queen in Camelot.

For the most part, when Mrs. Kennedy is seen with a man in public, speculation starts afresh: Is this the man she might marry? One such was movie and stage director Mike Nichols.

But a friend says: "She doesn't go out with Mike any more. We're all sorry because he was amusing and made her laugh."

Others mentioned as potential suitors, apparently without basis, are architect John Carl Warnecke, lawyer Michael V. Forrestal, diplomat Antonio Garrigues y Diaz Canabate, and, most insistently of late, Lord Harlech.

The most persistent recent rumors, though, which Mrs. Kennedy denied through her secretary, Nancy Tuckerman, concerned Lord Harlech, formerly British ambassador to the United States and a close friend for 13 years of both Jack and Jackie Kennedy.

Lord Harlech, 49, who was Sir David Ormsby-Gore until he inherited the title from his father a few years ago, lost his wife in a car crash May 30. Mrs. Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy flew to England for the funeral.

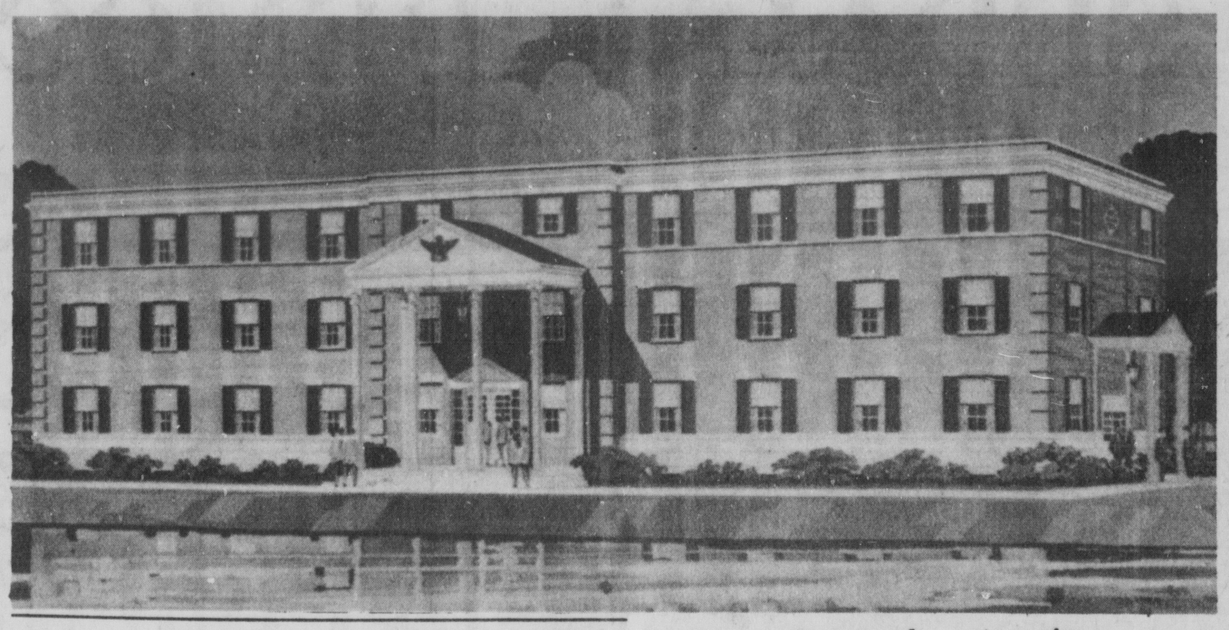
How does Mrs. Kennedy keep busy?

She is deeply concerned with plans for the Kennedy Library museum at Cambridge, Mass., and the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington. She headed the American committee to save art objects in flooded Florence, Italy.

She travels widely to ski and vacation — in Ireland, Switzerland, the British West Indies, Italy, and most recently, the Far East, within the last year.

Yet here and there criticis are becoming bolder in chipping away at the living national monument that is Jacqueline Kennedy. Women's Wear Daily, fashion trade journal that calls her "Her Elegance," observes her minutely and usually gushes in unstinting admiration, has begun to pick at her. The other day it flatly called her a clothes horse and twitted her for having an all-time love affair with clothes. It accused her of throwing out all last year's wardrobe and buying new and expensive apparel by the gross.

But criticized or not, Mrs. Kennedy still receives mail from admirers. To her office, which is now the Joseph P. Kennedy office since she no longer receives official funds for maintaining her own, come a faithful average of 75 letters a day.



New Dorm for Academy

Work began this week on Missouri Military Academy's new air conditioned lakeside dormitory in Mexico, Mo., for 98 cadets. The three-story building, located along the south shore of MMA's Teardrop Lake, will cost approximately $325,000, according to Col. C. R. Stribling, president. (UPI)

British Secret Service No Longer So Secret

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — Every American schoolboy knows who J. Edgar Hoover is the same as he knows that the Green Bay Packers don't really pack anything.

But here the name of Sir Martin Furnival-Jones, Britain's top spy-catcher, was a carefully guarded secret until a magazine let the cat out of the bag recently. The magazine not only identified Furnival-Jones as the head of British Security (M15), but it named the head of British Intelligence (M16) as well. He is Sir Dick Goldsmith White.

The article will probably result in an overhaul of voluntary press censorship system here whereby such information is kept from the public.

In America things are different. Not only are J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI well-publicized, but even the Central Intelligence Agency has its own public relations officer and is listed in the Washington telephone book. The CIA head Richard Helms, appears before congressional committees regularly and is even free to make public statements.

Here you would search the London telephone book in vain for any listing of the Secret Intelligence Service (M16), which is the British counterpart of the CIA. As for Sir Dick Goldsmith White, he isn't even listed in Who's Who.

He is the mysterious, faceless individual always referred to in James Bond books as "M."

Although the government is hopping mad that the identity of its two top spy chiefs has been leaked, it is regarded in other quarters as a healthy sign. For the government's hush-hush policy has created an "almost pornographic public curiosity" concerning the intelligence services, as The Observer points out in a recent editorial.

By contrast, the American policy is an open-handed one. In Washington, for example, any visitor can go on a conducted tour of FBI headquarters. A guided tour of M15 would be unthinkable in Britain. In the first place, no one is even supposed to know that M15 has headquarters in Curzon Street, Mayfair. In the second place, the headquarters themselves have the sinister look of Hernando's Hideaway. Some of their windows are bricked up. Big-muscled chaps in fawn-colored raincoats come and go. At British Intelligence (M16) headquarters in Queen Anne's Gate the muscles are not so noticeable. Fawn-colored raincoats, too, are in shorter supply.

Until now the identities of Britain's security chiefs has been protected by voluntary press censorship known as the D-Notice system. (A government committee issues D-Notices to newspapers listing subjects that should not be publicized in the national interest). But now that system has broken down, and many newspapers feel that it should be scrapped altogether.

The Observer feels that the government should take the public into its confidence: "Let them admit that we have our equivalents of the CIA and FBI. Let the chiefs of these services become publicly known personalities. And let these chiefs explain their function in broad terms . . . as they do in America."

If this suggestion is followed, Sir Dick Goldsmith White will have to get used to being pointed out in restaurants and seeing his name in the gossip columns.

Franco in Madrid

Court Order Bars Pickets From Plant

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pickets were withdrawn from the Western Electric plant in suburban Lee's Summit, Mo., Friday in response to a court order, and three union officials were cited for contempt of court.

Few of the 3,800 production and trades workers have worked since the walkout started Wednesday. About 1,200 office workers have stayed on the job.

Officials of Communication Workers of American Local 6063 said it was a wildcat walkout in a dispute over company policy in subcontracting some work.

Circuit Judge Robert A. Meyers issued an order Thursday restraining the strikers from picketing and preventing entrance to the plant.

The pickets did not disperse, however, until sheriff's deputies threatened to arrest them Friday afternoon.

Judge Meyers issued contempt citations against William R. Harwell, local president; Willis L. Castle and Davy R. Wilson, local vice presidents. They will have a hearing in court Tuesday.

Bond Issue Is Defeated

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — A $435,000 bond proposal for a physical education building at Joplin's second high school lacked only four votes of winning approval Friday in the second election on the issue.

There were 3,324 votes in favor and 1,668 against, with a two-thirds majority required.

The school board postponed a decision on whether to ask for a third election until attorneys determine the legality of seven ballots that were not counted. Election judges set the ballots aside because they did not bear the black sticker that election workers are supposed to place on each ballot.

School officials say the high school cannot be accredited unless it has the physical educa-

CLUB NEWS

Twenty-seven mothers were guests of Junior Scout Troop 374 at their celebration of Juliette Low's birthday at the Wesley Methodist Church.

Members of the troop have been working on the Dance badge under the direction of Donald Donath, and as their program for their mothers, they danced the Virginia Reel, Seven Jumps, the Mexican Hat Dance, and the Hokey Pokey.

At the time of roll call, the girls introduced their mothers, and also made their donation of 10 cents each toward the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund.

Newly-elected patrol leaders were installed and given their patrol leader cords by their troop leader, Mrs. Orrin C. Smith. They were: Dears Patrol, Karla Gibson, leader; Bat Girls Patrol, Sally Rodgers, leader; Boy Watchers, Geila Swift, leader; and the Monkees, Nina Burks, leader.

Assistant Patrol Leaders are: Dears, Denise Moore; Bat Girls, Kathy Schwartz; Boy Watchers, Janis Charles; and the Monkees, Jeanie Lorentsen. Jamie Schumaker is troop Scribe and Kahty Hall, troop Treasurer.

Mrs. Smith talked to the mothers about how Junior Scouts earn badges, and how mothers can help. She then told the group briefly of her recent trip to the Caribbean, and gave each Scout a square nickel from the Netherlands Antilles.

Following the program, refreshments were served.

Members of Junior Scout Troop 374 enjoyed a hayride in the rain Nov. 10. Twenty-nine girls, along with Mr. and Mrs. Price Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin C. Smith, and Mrs. Donald Carpenter enjoyed the hayride, which included stopping by the Jennie Jaynes stadium and watching part of the Smith-Cotton game.

Following the hayride, the girls had a bunking party at Mrs. Smith's home, and were joined there by Mrs. James Schumaker, also one of the troop leaders. The girls brought records and danced, and enjoyed refreshments of hot chocolate and popcorn while sitting around the fireplace.

Sacred Heart Troop 301, met Tuesday Nov. 7. After a short meeting the troop went to the park for a hamburger fry. They were assisted by girls from the Senior troop and their leader Mrs. Robt. Fingland. The previous meeting the Senior girls had showed interesting films about Juliette Low's birthplace and taught the girls new songs. At an earlier meeting the girls had enjoyed a trip through the Sedalia Democrat's new building. Leaders are Mrs. Cutler and Mrs. Klamert.

Jan Norris read the minutes of the last Senior Planning Board.

Jan Daryl Sauers, and Gwen Eisenstein volunteered to attend the next Planning Board.

The troop listened to a recording of "Follow the Piper," which was played on a phonograph with Annetta Grainger borrowed from a local business establishment. The girls then proceeded to practice the song on their own.

Approximately 20 girls volunteered to assist in the annual Children's Therapy Center Bond Drive.

Senior troop 375 met November 8 at the First Methodist Church under the advisorship of Mrs. Bob Fingland.

Phi Beta, women's professional music and speech fraternity at Central Methodist College, Fayette, has accepted into membership eight pledges. Accepted from Sedalia was Miss Ruth M. Cheffey, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles B. Cheffey, 600 West Third, and a sophomore organ major at the college. She was pledge president.

Dance 'Seven Jumps'

Junior Girl Scout Troop 374 danced the "Seven Jumps," a dance that originated in Denmark, at a recent Juliette Low celebration. The group is studying the different dances while working for their dance badges, under the direction of Donald Donath.

Attending the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Clay Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Fischer, Mrs. Clifford Stewart, all of Independence; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fishcer, Warsaw; Walter E. Scott, Hughesville; Mr. and Mrs. Pollard Wood, Smithton; Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Richards, Mr. and Mrs. John Houston, Herbie, Lanny, Cindy and Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Weir, Rusty, Karen, Ronda and Britt, and Aric Snyder, Sedalia and Mrs. Fischer and Milton of the home.

Calling during the afternoon were: Mr. and Mrs. Les Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Loy Richards and Mike, Howard Richards, Melody, Jeanie and Tommie, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Richards, Joel, Dianne and Jill.

In the afternoon there was much reminiscing and also games.

Mrs. Fischer received many nice gifts.

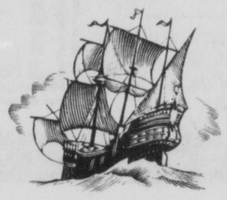
A Time To Remember Who We Are



This is the time of year when Americans traditionally observe a day of thanksgiving for their blessings. It is good that we should do this.

But is it not also fitting that on the day—so reminiscent of our origins—we should be mindful of our heritage and the trust it imposes on us. The price the Pilgrims paid for survival. The bloody feet at Valley Forge. The thunder at the Alamo, Gettysburg, the Argonne, Midway, Bastogne, Pork Chop Hill and now the DMZ.

Yes, let us remember who we are. For a little pride is the wellspring of courage. Let us endure unflinchingly whatever sacrifices we are called upon to make to defend our free institutions from the night of communism, which is bent on undermining our faith in ourselves. Let us rely not only on the gold in our vaults, but the iron in our blood. And let us cling like ivy to the faith of our fathers until, in God's good time, all men are free.

Tuesday the Target Date

Tuesday is the day set aside for Sedalians to vote on the proposition to issue general obligation industrial bonds to the amount $750,000 for the purpose of purchasing and constructing an industrial plant to be leased and otherwise disposed of to Rival Manufacturing Company.

This is repetitious reference to a subject that has been discussed and explained for many weeks, so by now it seems every Sedalian should know the purposes of the bond issue especially the assurance there will be no tax increase on tangible taxable property as long as Rival is in existence.

Elsewhere in Missouri similar propositions relating to industrial expansion have been passed by wholesome majorities over the two-thirds vote required. So this is no new-fangled experiment to arouse suspicious conjectures as so often is the case with promotions to develop the industrial potential of a city.

Now Sedalia simply has to have expansion of the industries it has as well as obtain new factories which mean larger and additional payrolls. These things we must attract to bring in new businesses, new homes and other public improvements. Otherwise we stagnate by standing still or barely creeping along.

What do you hear about the bond issue? we have been asked lately. Well, we have heard the matter talked about, read a great deal about it and listened to reports of general approval of the proposition by individuals and organizations resolving to support it. But there hasn't been any pre-election pyrotechnics.

If there is any opposition to the bond issue no emotional expression of dissent has been heard; a peep or two, maybe, but nothing window-pane rattling like the current epidemic of sonic booms.

Another observation; we are reminded not to discount the habitual charge to the polls of the light brigade of 2,000 every time a progressive project is submitted to the electorate. Then, too, we must also be alert to the possibility of last minute anonymous pre-election dodger opposition.

If the current bond issue is passed, it will require a strenuous effort of supporters to go to their ward polling place Tuesday and register an affirmative vote to overcome the persistent handicap of the 2,000.

Optimists who feel their vote will not be needed should beware of the current silence of bond issue opponents. There is an old Latin law maxim which says that silence gives consent, interpreted in this instance to mean that the proposition will sail to success like an Apollo 4. But remember Apollo 4 had a lot of booster support and none of it was wasted.

That's what the bond issue will require Tuesday at the four wards, a map of which appears in today's edition of the Democrat-Capital. This is a guide for those who want to know where they can go to add a pint of booster fuel to put the bond issue into orbit for the prestige and betterment of Sedalia.

Kirwan Kills Power Project Funds

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—It was because one powerful congressman was in a hurry to start junketing to Hawaii that the famous atomic power project of the St. John's River in Maine was finally knocked out of the Public Works Appropriations Bill.

The congressman, Mike Kirwan of Youngstown, Ohio, a power in Democratic councils, wanted to leave with his friend Rep. John Rhodes, the Arizona Republican, to "inspect" public works in Hawaii and attend the National Reclamation Association convention—all at government expense.

The House and Senate had been deadlocked over the Dickey-Lincoln public power project in Maine for which the Johnson administration had recommended $875,000 to get underway. The Senate had voted for this start.

The House, however, was opposed. The opposition was led by none other than Rep. Kirwan, the man who has proposed a $3 billion canal between Youngstown, his home town, and Pittsburgh on the Ohio River. Kirwan has bulldozed Congress into voting $500,000 to study his project. Despite this he was adamantly opposed to having money voted to start the St. John's River project in Maine.

And since Mike is chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee which allocates campaign funds to House Democrats, he can sway a lot of votes on the House side of Capitol Hill. He did so in the case of the Dickey-Lincoln public power project.

For a long time the Senate refused to go along with him. But when Mike warned the House "We will be here until the Fourth of July" before he'd yield, the Senate surrendered and accepted a compromise conference bill dropping the appropriations.

That afternoon Mike left on the junket to Hawaii.

His Democratic colleague from Maine, Rep. William Hathaway, was one congressman who wasn't awed by Kirwan's control of the Democratic campaign purse strings. He stated: "Kirwan lobbied during the crucial roll call vote and refused to permit any debate on the project. He killed Dickey-Lincoln."

NOTE: Junkets have sometimes played an important part in influencing vital legislation. When the House passed the Draft Act replacing the old draft act and affecting millions of young men, it was rushed through in a few hours of evening debate all because the Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Mendel Rivers of South Carolina, was eager to leave on a junket to Paris. Congressmen should have been given several days to debate a measure so vital to the youth of America. However, Rivers wanted to see the air show in Paris, so persuaded Speaker McCormack to jam the draft bill through in a protracted night session.

—REV. LEWIS' SERMON—

There was an inside reason why the Rev. Lewis preached a political sermon to his captive audience at Williamsburg. Ordinarily the White House doesn't tell anyone where the President and family are going to worship. It's much easier for the Secret Service if there is no advance notice so there will be no crowd.

In both Washington and Texas, LBJ just drops in at any church, sometimes his own National City Christian Church on Thomas Circle, sometimes St. John's Episcopal Church across from the White House. But in Williamsburg, the White House had inquired of Carl Humelsine, former Assistant Secretary of State, now efficient President of Williamsburg, about churches. Humelsine recommended the historic Bruton Parish Church. He also tipped off the pastor that the Johnson family was coming.

So the Rev. Lewis was all set with a "Why Vietnam?" sermon.

What peeved the President was that he had made a speech at San Antonio only last month in which he spent 30 minutes on television trying to answer exactly the questions raised by the preacher as to why we were fighting and what we had done to negotiate. Apparently the Rev. Lewis doesn't look at TV or read the papers.

MONEY CLIPS

Indian-head or Buffalo?

This is the only coin that is bought, sold, collected, saved, advertised and recorded by the name of the device on the reverse rather than the device on the obverse like other coins.

Officially, it is known as the Indian-head nickel, but once it left the influence of mint records it became the Buffalo nickel.

Actually, there is only one logical reason for this left-handed reference and even that doesn't make sense. The reverse or buffalo side of the coin required a major design change twice in 1913 and because it was necessary to display the back of the coin to show both types, it soon picked up the name of the reverse design—the Buffalo.

James E. Fraser used four models for the symbols on this coin.

The head is a composite of three Indian chiefs—John Big Tree, Two Moons and Iron Tail. Black Diamond, a bison from the Central Park Zoo in New York, posed for the reverse device. This five-cent piece ran its full course of 25 years from 1913 to 1938 and still enjoys more attention from noncollectors and collectors than any other coin except the Lincoln cent.

Of all the minor coinage struck in the 20th century, the 1918 over 1917 Denver issue commands the highest premium. It lists at $200 in very good condition to $4,200 for an uncirculated piece. There were 8,362,000 nickels minted at Denver in 1918 and just how many were struck over the 1917 date is anybody's guess but if you have one, hang on to it. It is bound to go even higher.

A similar situation arose with the striking of the 1938-D nickel. This was the last year for the Buffalo series and apparently dies prepared in San Francisco were shipped to Denver for final production. An eager mint employe tried to save a little time by dropping a D over the letter S in one of the working dies and the results were not discovered until just a few years ago. Coin World's latest market shows a value of $6 for a 1938 D over S in very good condition and $35 for uncirculated.

Like the Lincoln cent, the Buffalo nickel is closest to the collector's heart and there will always be a market for those pieces that are considered from very good on up.

Mrs. A. W., Rising Sun, Ind. (Cincinnati Post and Times Star): Your 1883 silver dollar must have a mint mark under the bow of the ribbon on the reverse to have much of a market. The mint letter S puts a price of from $2 to $24 on it. The letters CC lists it at $7 to $19 and the letter O or no letter at all holds the price down to around $3.

Mrs. C. R. B., Pittsburgh, Pa. (Pittsburgh Press): Check with the Press for the name of a local coin club and the time and place of its next meeting. Ask any of the club officers to assist you in identifying your mint marks. They are always glad to be of help.

We always hesitate to write about lead-directing doubles because, in a sense, any time you double when your partner is on lead you expect him to consider his lead in the light of your double. Various specific conventions apply only to doubles of slam or three no-trump contracts. Against a freely bid slam, the double just asks your partner to make an unusual lead. Thus, if you have bid a suit and then double a suit slam contract, you are asking your partner to lead some other suit. Against no-trump contracts this does not apply. When you double a three, six or seven no-trump contract you are saying, "Partner! Lead my suit!"

East has a normal one club opening. No one can criticize South's one no-trump overcall or North's jump to three no-trump. Without a club lead South will knock out the ace of diamonds and start with nine top tricks. If he takes the spade and heart finesses he will actually make two overtricks.

Furthermore, no one could criticize a spade lead by West in the event that East had not doubled three no-trump. West would hope to hit his partner with good spades and enough other stuff to keep declarer from running off nine tricks before the spades can be run against him.

In fact, some people are prone enough to try surprise leads that they would still open a spade after their partner's double. That is, they would do so unless they were playing this specific convention. In that case they would open a club and hope for the best. The best would materialize. South would have to go after diamonds and East would collect one diamond, four clubs and 200 points.

Thanksgiving Praise

When comes a twinge of winter
With its dreary days, and cold,
And our choice flowers in the garden
In peat blankets we enfold,
Then the days we note grow shorter
And the calendar's at November.
Like the Pilgrims did at Plymouth
We pause now, God, to remember
The many blessing of the years
And humbly sing your praise,
The hope that you have given us
In, oh, so many ways.
Yes, there are wars and bloodshed,
And there is death and grief
That people could not stand, I'm sure,
Without a firm belief;
Oh, there is crime and hatred,
Eccentrics everywhere,
There are riots and heartbreaks
And many things unfair;
But God, the most of us are good,
With all our hearts we strive
To meet the struggles day by day
And keep your word alive.
We make mistakes, I'm certain,
We bungle now along,
Yet we do right more often, God,
I think, than we do wrong,
For you are always in our hearts;
We feel your gentle hand,
Nevertheless there are many things
We do not understand.
Still, God, in you we put our trust,
But the weaknesses of man
We only wish that we could know
Your thinking and your plan,
But God we are so grateful
For your blessings day by day,
Do we get sometimes so busy
That we don't take time to say?
If we do it's in our hearts, God,
And we hold you very dear,
We are thankful every day, God,
Not just this one time of year;
We are thankful in the spring, God,
When everything awakes,
We're thankful for the summer
With trees and flowers and lakes,
We're thankful for the autumn
With coloring so rare,
We're thankful for the winter
That leaves the world so bare,
With now and then a snowfall,
A miracle of white
That changes every object
To an enchanted sight.
Ah, yes, dear God, we're thankful
For you are kind and wise
Perhaps the things that hurt us most
Are blessing in disguise;
Yes, all the year we're thankful,
But at this time we raise
Our voices in Thanksgiving,
A grateful nation prays.

No Skin Problem Benefit From Facial Sauna Device

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—I have a skin problem. Of what value is the facial sauna for skin disorders?

A—None. This is an expensive way of adding heat and moisture to your skin—an effect more easily attained by the application of a hot towel. Furthermore, these effects are quickly dissipated following the treatment. Any sauna device that claims specific benefits for acne, aging skin or other skin troubles is liable to seizure by the Food and Drug Administration.

Q—What is Stelazine used for? Does it have any bad side effects?

A—This tranquilizer is used for the treatment of persons with extreme nervous tension. It should not be taken by anyone who has a liver disease and those who take it should have a periodic blood count. Side effects are rare if the dosage is regulated to your needs. Some persons taking this drug complain of drowsiness, dry mouth, dizziness and insomnia.

Q—For the past year I have been taking Trilafon, Stelazine and Valium. Is there any danger in taking these drugs for so long?

A—These three drugs are all tranquilizers. In the treatment of some severe nervous disorders the use of all three at once, under careful medical supervision, is justifiable. In addition to periodic blood counts, the ocular tension should be checked for early signs of glaucoma in anyone taking Valium.

Q—I am taking Kemadrin, Stelazine and Norpramin. What are they for? Would any of them cause me to gain weight?

A—Kemadrin is an anti-spasmodic used chiefly in the treatment of Parkinson's palsy and desipramine (Norpramin) is an antidepressant similar to imipramine. Stelazine and Norpramin in large doses may cause a loss of appetite but in moderate doses they might, by relaxing you, allow your appetite to improve.

Guest Editorial

FRAZEE (Minn.) FORUM: The Sweat of Whose Brow? — It is not hard-hearted to say the reason some people are 'poverty stricken' is because they do not want to work. There is no use beating around the bush, some people are plain lazy, and want all they can get without any effort on their part — Certainly help the real unfortunate, but the industrious do not have the obligation to care for society's drones. The Good Book says man shall live by the sweat of his brow, and we haven't read in the same book where any Great Society has to take care of him who is capable of caring for himself, but will not.

MANCHESTER (N.H.) UNION LEADER: A Problem to Caesar. — We sometimes assume that modern problems are unique, whereas most often they are new versions of difficulties men have faced many times before. Take the traffic problem as an example. Caught in a snarled traffic mess, how often does a motorist think to himself: Oh for the good old days when the horse ruled the road. Maybe country roads were quieter then but cities have always had their problems.

Julius Caesar faced some of these in the days of Rome's glory. Francis C. Turner, director, U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, points out that traffic snarls were so acute in the market place of Imperial Rome and around the Circus Maximus that Caesar was forced to bar all except pedestrian traffic for the 10 hours after sunrise. He also instituted one-way traffic and abolished downtown parking.

Caesar even had the fortitude to do what no modern traffic engineer would have the temerity to do: Lady charioteers were not permitted to drive in the city on Sundays or during times of heavy traffic. One would expect it to have been Brutus's wife who finally put an end to him.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q — I've been supporting my uncle for some years. Will I lose my deduction for him if he goes into a rest home?

A — A close relative does not have to be a member of your household to qualify as your dependent. As long as other tests are met, you will still be able to claim your uncle as a dependent even though he no longer lives with you.

Q — I take care of my neighbor's child while she works. Do I have to pay tax on what she pays me?

A — The money you receive for this should be added to your other income for the year. If your gross income from this and other sources amounts to $600 or more then you must file a return. If you file a joint return with your husband then this income must be reported even when it is under $600.

If net income from taking care of your neighbor's child totals $400 or more you also may be liable for a self employment tax. Be sure to check this when you add up your income for the year.

Suez Canal Closure Hurts Egypt Most

By LAWRENCE MALKIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — As a big gun in economic warfare, the closing of the Suez Canal has backfired on the man who shut it, Gamal Abdel Nasser. Some of the Egyptian president's friends, including the Russians, also have been hurt.

Egypt's economy is suffering from the loss of the canal's revenues. The future of the canal itself as a major international waterway and earner of foreign currency for Egypt is in doubt.

Two of Egypt's diplomatic allies, India and Pakistan, have been seriously hurt by higher freight rates for wheat and fertilizer from the United States and Europe.

The Soviet Union, Egypt's chief military supporter, has been forced to divert ships onto longer routes to Communist forces in North Vietnam.

Australia also has been hit, but an Associated Press survey shows that among Nasser's traditional diplomatic opponents only Britain has been seriously hurt.

Even the Israelis have benefited indirectly. Using the political instability of the canal as a bargaining point, they have secured financial backing to build a pipeline across Israel paralleling the canal. It is planned with a capacity of almost one-third of the oil the canal once helped speed from Middle East fields to Western Europe.

Those hated "imperialist" oil companies are making high profits and their European oil stocks continue to rise as the emergency route around the African Cape settles into routine. The threat of a winter fuel crisis in Europe has evaporated.

The oil companies are beginning to calculate that the canal, closed last June 6 at the start of the Arab-Israeli war, may not open for another year. When it finally does, more and more supertankers will be bypassing it. They're too big to fit the canal, and the Cape route is cheaper for them anyway. Esso Oil has ordered a dozen 200,000-ton giants from European shipyards.

Said one European oilman: "Every additional day the Suez Canal remains closed it loses in value."

Authorities as politically diverse as the Israelis, the Indians, the British and the French believe the United States has deliberately calculated that the continued closure of the canal works to long-run American advantage. They reason that anything which slows up Soviet shipments to North Vietnam puts pressure on Nasser to settle with Israel, and besides gives a bonus to American oil companies supplying Europe.

Some Americans say, however, that Washington is concerned at the drain on Britain's balance of payments.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson has estimated the cost at about $55 million a month in British foreign exchange, largely because of increased tanker freight rates and shipping charges around the Cape. The foreign exchange drain of substituting U.S. and Venezuelan oil for Arab supplies ended when the Arab boycott formally ended early in the fall.

As tanker rates drop, Wilson expects the drain on the balance of payments to fall with them. The rates already are only half the crisis levels reached in June.

Some west European countries never had to touch their reserve oil stocks. Most put a small surcharge on petroleum products.

Many shipowners in Sweden, Norway, Britain, Greece and other major maritime nations made a killing on the sudden boost in tanker rates.

Diversion of ships around the Cape has brought a windfall from ship fees and repair charges to South Africa, one of Egypt's bitterest enemies on the issue of racial segregation.

To Nasser's enemies, the situation may seem like a good joke on him.

Dim Hope For U.N. Accord

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Prospects of Security Council agreement on a Middle East peace formula appeared remote today as members studied three rival plans. None of them were believed acceptable to both the Arabs and the Israelis.

The 15-nation council was moving toward a showdown on the proposals, but some delegates predicted that the ballot may not come until next week. Some members were awaiting instructions from their governments.

Britain came in late Thursday with a compromise draft. Both the Israelis and the Egyptians withheld comment on the British plan until they heard from home, but there were reports that the Russians gave the formula a cool reception.

The United States and India, Mali and Nigeria had already put in rival plans, neither of which was acceptable to both sides.

Lord Caradon introduced the British resolution after warning the council that the alternative to effective action on the Middle East was "too terrible to contemplate."

The British resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal "from territories occupied in the recent conflict" when Israel seized hundreds of square miles of territory from Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

It also affirms the need for an end to "all claims or states of belligerency," a reference to the state of war the Arabs have maintained against Israel since the Jewish state was born 19 years ago.

Like the other two resolutions, the British draft would send a U.N. representative to the Middle East "to promote and assist efforts to achieve a peaceful and accepted settlement."

Foreign Ministers Abba Eban of Israel and Mahmoud Riad of Egypt both restated their positions after Caradon spoke and both made clear they would stand by them.

Riad said Egypt was "absolutely firm" in its demand for complete and unconditional Israeli withdrawal from all captured lands. Eban said his government would insist on "secure and recognized boundaries."

Ask Them Yourself

FOR JOHN C. BALLIN,

Committee on Human Reproduction, American Medical Association

What are the AMA's views on abortions?—Mrs. Ray Popick, Forest City, Pa.

● The AMA is opposed to therapeutic (medically induced) abortion except under certain circumstances. These include (1) conditions constituting a risk to the life or health of the mother, (2) pregnancy resulting from rape or incest, and (3) pregnancy which is likely to result in the birth of a physically or mentally handicapped baby. If legalized abortion were to be available on demand for social or economic reasons, then the vast majority of physicians would be opposed.

FOR JUDITH CRIST,

NBC movie critic

What have been your favorite movies and what general points do you look at to determine your criticism?—Richard Pajares, Austin, Texas

● A list of my all-time favorite films would be far too long, but among this year's movies I'd include "To Sir, With Love," "The Dirty Dozen," and "In the Heat of the Night." "Liking" a film is a personal thing—one can "like" a bad movie. But I judge a film by its cinematic quality, accomplishment of purpose, and honesty of statement.

FOR EDDIE ALBERT

of "Green Acres"

How old were you when you started in show business? Are you using your real name?—D. D., VanderWal, East Lansing Mich.

● I started in show business when I was a teen-ager, singing in so-called amateur nights for $5 a show. My real name is Eddie Albert Heimberger, but I dropped the Heimberger when I went into show business because most people pronounced it like it was served on a bun with mustard and relish.

FOR JOHNNY UNITAS,

Baltimore Colts

I've noticed many football players wear the new low-cut shoes. Why do you still wear the old high-top ones?—Robert Shankles, Kingsport, Tenn.

● It's true that most pro football players have gone to the low-cut shoe in recent years. But there are still many players, such as Jim Parker and Lenny Moore of the Colts, who wear the high-tops as I do. They're comfortable, and I like the ankle support they provide.

FOR RON ELY

Do you do the "Tarzan" yell yourself?—Mrs. Billie Hardee, Hillsborough, N. C.

● No. I don't. A Tarzan yell was used in the first sound picture in the series back in 1929. The current yell, however, started with Johnny Weissmuller's first Tarzan picture in 1932. Weissmuller says it came about by accident. Just yelling didn't sound right, so he combined it with a German yodel. I use that same yell electronically improved.

FOR WALTER LANTZ, cartoonist

Do you have to change your cartoon, "Woody Woodpecker," considerably when you send it to foreign countries?—O. L., Lowell, Mass.

● No, a cartoon story must be universal. Language should not be a requisite for understanding the story. I was lucky enough to have found a winner in Woody Woodpecker. He has been a star for 25 years and is seen in 72 countries.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,

author of "Emily Post's Etiquette"

On your recent trip to Russia, what impressed you as the greatest differences between our way of life and theirs?—F. X. M., Chicago, Ill.

● Housing for one. There are few homeowners in Russia, many families being crowded into small apartments. Telephones also are difficult to obtain, and there are no telephone books. There is a limited amount of home entertaining because of lack of space. Guests usually bring their own food when visiting. Finally, there are few taxis, bars, and places that sell chewing gum and candy.

FOR LAWRENCE WELK

Do your musicians work on a full-time basis or do they have other jobs as well?—Mrs. Edward Barrtner, Mt. Solon, Va.

● Being a member of the Welk organization is certainly a full-time job. Many of our musicians, however, particularly the soloists, make personal appearances which could be considered "extra" jobs.

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. Send question, preferably on a post card, to Ask Them Yourself, Family Weekly, 405 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We cannot acknowledge questions, but $5 will be paid for each one used.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Coincidence: Gov. Ronald Reagan is being mentioned as a possible GOP Presidential candidate, and probably the least surprised person in the country is his ex-wife, Jane Wyman. In 1948, on the way to the divorce court to sue the then-actor for "grievous mental suffering," she complained: "All he ever talks about is politics!" Among the assets they divided up were $550 in "notes receivable, Democratic Committee." But as a hint of Republican destiny to come, Ronnie's lawyer in those days was a guy named R. Goldwater!

Jane, Ronnie, daughter, '41

Debbie Drake

Shape of the Nation Where do you find the shapeliest American women? Fitness expert Debbie Drake says they're in Arizona, California, Florida, and New York. Dress size also is connected to city size, she says. "Small-town women cook for each other and put on pounds, but who ever heard of a New York woman baking a pie for her neighbor?"

Alphabet Soup If your last name begins with the letters S to Z, you may be a victim of "alphabet neurosis." According to a survey made by Dr. Trevor Weston in London, people at the end of the alphabet are twice as likely to get an ulcer and three times as likely to be hit by a coronary. The problem begins in school, he says, when S-to-Z pupils are the last to get their grades or be called on to recite. Actor Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., who now gets top billing, tut-tuts the theory. "The only alphabet difficulty I ever had," he says scoffingly, "was on payday in the Army."

Gadgets Galore This year's International Inventors Exhibition was giddier than ever. Among the believe-it-or-not items—all patented—were: shoes that allow you to walk on water; a vitamin-enriched, digestible diaper pin for accident-prone babies; a phone you carry in your pocket; a flying submarine; a cigarette that lights itself. One that definitely made sense was a wide-angle car mirror that gives the driver a cinemascope rear view. In a number of cities, police now are using these mirrors to nab speeders and other naughty types.

School Daze Lots of teachers would like to flunk the new short skirts. Scholarship goes down as hems go up, they moan. At the New Hamilton High School East in Hamilton Township, N.J., they've solved the problem by tacking front "modesty panels" to their open desks to hide the "distractions" of the popular miniskirt.

Modesty panels for minis

Introducing an exotic new spice: good old Molasses.

Brer Rabbit Molasses is the newest flavor trick to happen to foods. It enhances them with a delicate sweet, yet tart taste. A spicy aroma. And a lot of nourishment, too. Using our light or dark molasses, try the ideas below. You'll see how quick and easy it is to stir anybody's appetite and soul.

Trickle molasses over grapefruit for a new and dramatic personality. Also do it on vanilla ice cream or applesauce.

Brush your bacon with molasses and broil. It'll give it a lot of character.

Pork Chop 'N Apple Casserole:
An enticing dinner dish.
4 lean pork chops (trim fat)
salt
1 tbs. shortening
4 cups sliced tart cooking apples
¼ cup raisins
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
¼ cup Brer Rabbit Molasses
¼ cup water

Preheat oven to 350° F. Sprinkle pork chops with salt; sauté in shortening until brown. Mix together apples, raisins and lemon rind, and place in 2-qt. greased baking dish. Combine molasses and water; pour over apple mixture. Put in browned pork chops. Cover and bake 1 hour. Remove cover and bake ½ hour more. Makes 4 servings.

Mix a tablespoon of molasses to a glass of cold milk and have your daily shot of iron in the most pleasant way.

We have many other recipes for all kinds of occasions. Just send 25¢ to Brer Rabbit, P.O. Box 179, New York, N.Y. 10046, and we'll send you our Molasses Cookbook right away.

At Grandfather's farm everything on the laden table was raised by hand, and when the prayer of thanks ended, the "Amen" was like a call to battle

Boyhood Thanksgivings I'll Always Remember

By PAUL ENGLE
Author of "A Prairie Christmas," "The Golden Child," and "Always the Land"

AS OUR Grandfather lifted his long carving knife before he cut the first slice of meat, we could see, hanging on the wall behind him, the saber he had carried as a cavalryman in the Civil War.

It was the right ornament for our Thanksgiving, which was not only a holiday but something of a battle in which the participants groaned as much as the loaded table.

Nostalgic paintings of early 20th-century families looking over the endless food always show relaxed and smiling faces. Of course, we were cheerful, too, for in that less complicated time it was easily assumed that, if a man worked seven 14-hour days a week (with a little time between chores on Sunday for prayer), he would be rewarded with a decent meal on Thanksgiving Day.

In my childhood, however, Thanksgiving was not only obvious joy but also a certain desperate struggle. The Lord had challenged us with all those huge and heavy dishes. We could not let Him down. We fought the good fight with knife, fork, spoon, and raw courage. In the end, we proved that we had in us not only dutiful thanks but the power of survival as well.

Grandfather had been given part of the farm as bounty land for his war service. As he delicately severed a turkey neck to go into giblet gravy, it was hard to think of that gentle man swinging his saber at any human being.

When asked about the Sioux Indians he had fought (his company was sent west, not south, from Iowa), he would always say, "They were a very noisy outfit. You never heard such yelling."

Then lifting his hands as if they again held the supple leather reins, not carving knife and fork, he would add with a grin, "But I did some pretty good howling myself, boy."

Like a blessing at the start of a hard campaign, grace was given at length. Obviously, the Almighty had to listen to a lot of invocations at that same moment, and if ours wasn't long and loud enough it might not be heard. This was a very tense time, that waiting for the first clash of our weapons for eating. My Uncle George, who came farthest to join us, having gone to Idaho as a young man, would clench and unclench his hands in his lap, knocking his fists against each other like a fighter shadowboxing.

Grandfather had a right to bless that meal, for everything in it—save for coffee, sugar, and cranberries—he had raised himself. The hands that carved the bird had also set the eggs in the nest, raised the grain which it was fed, built the rack where it roosted, the pen where it was fattened, and had finally killed it.

Unlike a time of war, what was slaughtered was not the enemy but an old friend raised from a chick, who often followed Grandfather around the yard clucking at him and sometimes gobbling from a tree.

Grandfather wonderfully combined in his uttering of the "Amen" at the end of his prayer, the restraint of a final word to God and the excitement of a cavalry command. The adults at the big table, the adolescents at the medium table, and the little kids at the tiny one, wearied with giving thanks by words, now proved their gratitude by competing for food.

The faint of heart retired from combat after only two or three servings, but the bravest continued to slash heartily with their knives and spear with their forks and dip with their spoons.

As in any athletic competition there were cries and cheers. "Look at George, that's his fifth slice." "Tom, you've got to share that gravy with 16 other people." "Tillie, you can't just eat your own gooseberry jam. Try that quince and apple preserve Gertrude brought."

Every Thanksgiving one remark was always shouted at me: "Paulie,

Boyhood Thanksgivings

you can't stuff anything to eat in your pocket." But I did, with total lack of character and a thief's skill.

There were accusing eyes on us all the time. Grandfather had a big dog accustomed to going up trees with low branches. He would jump into an apple tree outside the kitchen window and stare at us all throughout the meal, not barking but making deep, rumbling noises in his throat as the smells of the meat and bones tormented his blunt nose.

Turkeys clung to branches just high enough to allow them to peer at the carcass of their late friend. On the table was applesauce from that tree, and a plate of apples waited on the sideboard to be the final edible item on the menu. (It was generally considered that Aunt Rose's molasses cookies, served at the same time, were not edible.)

Beyond the yard was the field from which the dried sweet corn, now creamed, had come. And the pumpkins, which had rolled golden down the rows, were now dark brown in pies. Next to the pumpkin patch was the garden from which the yellow and green beans had been harvested. (I put in hours hoeing and weeding them on summer visits, so that I, too, earned my appetite.)

It was all close at hand, all shaped and tendered by hand. I felt the callouses on Aunt Gertrude's fingers when she welcomed me each Thanksgiving morning—what woman now has skin rough from raising the food she is serving you?

The bitterest conflict of the day was always between my Uncles George and Charlie to see who remained eating and upright to the last. After everyone else had lapsed into a paralysis of arm and stomach, we would take sides: "Attaboy, George, one more piece of roast and you've got him beat." But then Charlie would rear back and lunge at a thigh joint of duck and be back in the struggle.

The final test was to prove that you had eaten something from every dish on the table. That was tough because it was not a matter of many different varieties of food but of many variations within each type. This was not merely a bowl of sweet or dill pickles—there were spiced beets, pickled watermelon rind, cauliflower and cherry, even prunes to which strange things had been done with vinegar and herbs.

There was no fruit of the region not represented in jam or jelly, all gathered by the cousins and cooked by Aunt Gertrude. There were cottage cheese from the bags hanging in the dark cave of an earth basement, cabbage as fresh cole slaw and as sauerkraut. Hickory-nut cake was the noblest because it meant the greatest labor—gathering nuts from the shaggy-barked trees down in the grove where Indians once camped, and later gypsies, curing them, cracking the iron-hard nut for the tiny but very sweet kernel inside. There were also angel food, upside-down cake, butternut (where have all the trees of this succulent nut gone?), black walnut, so oily and rich.

The pies were apple, mince, butterscotch, peach, cherry. Every one of these was a personal menace to George and Charlie, who were tempted to finish with a little dish of spiced Whitney crabapple, but under our observing eyes, out of deference to Gertrude's cooking, out of honor to the Lord who had provided, and out of stubborn determination to do better than last Thanksgiving, they resolutely worked their way through at least a sample of everything. Wounded in soul and gut, the uncles called it a draw, as they did every year, and staggered off to sleep the sleep of heroes.

Hearing the stir of people rising from table, the cats outside began to mew pathetically, the dogs barked in anticipation, and the children were threatened into clearing dishes from the tables. Aunts drew water from the reservoir alongside the fire in the kitchen range ("Don't let those dishes wait, they'll never get washed in time for supper," was Aunt Tillie's unbelievable remark), and the other men went outside to look at the fallow fields, from which all our nourishment had come and to walk off the edges of the meal, to let the mince pie with homemade ice cream (the cows who gave the milk watched us over the fence) shake down on the pickled green tomatoes.

The last survivor was Grandmother, asleep on the sofa with a freshly pressed handkerchief over her face, breathing deep from the work of the day and proving that the small heart inside was giving thanks that it was also tough and could endure. ◆

Stuffings for Roast Turkey

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Give your family a choice of their favorite dishes to accompany the beautifully browned, plump roast turkey for Thanksgiving dinner.

Roast Turkey

Prepare a turkey for stuffing. Rub body and neck cavities with salt. Fill lightly with desired stuffing. (Extra stuffing may be put into a greased covered baking dish or wrapped in aluminum foil and baked with turkey the last hour of roasting time.) Fasten neck skin to back with skewer and bring wing tips onto back. Push drumsticks under band of skin at tail, or tie with cord. Set, breast side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Brush with melted fat. Roast turkey in a 325°F. oven (see the note and the Guide for Roasting Turkey). If desired, baste occasionally with butter or pan drippings. When turkey is two-thirds done, cut band of skin or cord at drumsticks. Roast until done. For easier carving, let turkey stand 20 to 30 min., keeping it warm. Meanwhile, prepare gravy from drippings, if desired.

Note: If using a meat thermometer, insert thermometer so that tip is in the center of inside thigh muscle or thickest part of breast meat; be sure that tip does not touch bone. Thermometer will register 180°-185°F. when turkey is done.

How to Keep the Love of Your Grown Children

By HUGH DOWNS
Host of NBC's "Today Show"

WHEN MY father was a young man on an Ohio farm, it was the standing practice for fathers to give their sons a gold watch on their 21st birthday—along with the choice of staying on as a farmhand or leaving.

My own son Hugh Raymond knew about the practice, and we both regarded it as somewhat of a joke. But when he turned 21 recently, I gave him the traditional gold watch. I had it inscribed: "You have the choice of staying on as a paid hand or getting out."

H.R., who was raised in an air of independence, had already chosen: he enlisted in the Navy some 18 months ago. He since has married and thereby solidified his decision. As a parent, I am not the least bit slighted by his decision. Rather I feel a deep sense of accomplishment in that I had helped to raise a free-thinking, independent human being.

Nor will I feel slighted when my 18-year-old daughter Deirdre decides to leave the family nest. I've always believed that one's children, upon reaching maturity, have the inalienable right to live their own lives independent of their parents.

It's a tragic pattern in which we beget children, hover anxiously over their upbringing, underestimate both their individualities and abilities, and then lose them when they insist on living their own lives.

I don't pretend to be a child-guidance expert, but part of my own growing up was to realize that children are more than just children. They are other human beings, who happen to appear in conveniently small form at the outset and who initially lack the means to fend for themselves. As parents, we can accept or reject the responsibility of guiding them, equipping them with knowledge, and protecting them as they amass the experience they will need in later life.

Having gone through this phase of parenthood, if we are wise enough to have developed a love for these people, we will find it more than reciprocated. We will then feel no shock of loss when they leave home but rather the continuing joy of loving them and receiving their independent love in return until they are middle-aged and we are old.

To me, this is the greatest reward of parenthood. Yet it is here, I am convinced, where most parents fail.

The rewards of parenthood in the early years are well known—love, pride, amusement. But with the satisfactions are problems—discipline, rebellion. I've mentioned the rewards of parenthood in mature years—love freely given. But again there are problems, the alienation of generations, the inability to understand what each party needs.

How can mature parents avoid an irrevocable alienation? How can they keep their children's love even when they mature? Here are some guidelines I believe in:

1. Recognize his individuality.
2. Recognize your rights as a parent, which, if ignored, result in oversacrificing for the child.
3. Learn as well as teach.
4. Let go!

I must confess I had feelings before becoming a father that any child of mine would be an extension of myself—a "chip off the old block"—a puppet connected to my hand, completely subservient to my wishes and hopes. The first inkling I had of my error came when I put my hand on my wife's abdomen to feel the new life stirring there.

"Are you doing that?" I asked her. "No," she said. "That's your son or daughter." (It turned out to be my son.) It was his independent action and not his mother's, even though he depended on her for food and oxygen. The fact that this surprised me shows the fallacy of my thinking. Children come through us, not from us.

The parent who is constantly surprised and annoyed by the individuality of his child and who expects unquestioning obedience at all times is taking the first step toward losing his child in later life.

The second rule may seem to contradict the first. Safeguarding the parents' own rights is bound up with the exercise of authority, but this needn't interfere with recognizing the child's individuality. A parent must exercise authority for logical and proper reasons. When a child ar-

Now...for only $2.50 per month per person*... a policy that pays $100 a week (direct to you) for up to 52 weeks of hospitalization

...resulting from sickness or accidental bodily injury, beginning the first day in case of injury, the fourth day in case of sickness and $5,000 to your beneficiary

...if you die from accidental bodily injuries suffered in an accident to an automobile (while you are riding inside it—regardless of whether you are the driver or a passenger). And death need not occur immediately, but any time within 60 days of the accident.

You know how accident or sickness can strike suddenly and without warning! You know many people, perhaps even right in your own family, whose financial resources have been seriously depleted.

Regardless of how much hospital insurance people have at a time like this, it never seems to be enough.

Introductory rate available

You—and each family member—can apply for the first 30 days coverage under the policy for only 25¢ by filling out and mailing the application now. You handle everything direct by mail from the privacy of your own home. There is no one to go see and no one comes to call on you.

As you will see, this is the kind of policy that provides benefits when you need them most—at a price well within reason! It covers hospitalization from sickness originating or an accident occurring after the policy goes in force.

The benefits outlined above apply to you and each covered family member over 18 paying full rates. Half rates and half benefits apply to family members under 18. Covered family members (besides yourself) may include your spouse and unmarried dependent children.

What are your chances of being hospitalized?

So often you hear someone say, "It can happen to the other fellow, but it isn't going to happen to me."

Nothing could be farther from the truth.

Without counting government hospitals or nursing care homes, there were approximately 26,000,000 people admitted to hospitals in 1964. This means that ONE OUT OF EVERY SEVEN PEOPLE YOU KNOW—grownups and children—WENT TO THE HOSPITAL IN A SINGLE YEAR'S TIME!

When a member of the family goes to the hospital, it always means extra expense. Most regular living expenses go right on. And those unexpected bills have a way of piling up—long distance telephone calls, taxicabs, extra housekeeping help, emergency needs of all kinds.

So it's a MUST that you have hospital insurance—to provide benefits when you need them most—at a price well within reason.

Lower cost possible by 3-day waiting period if hospitalized from illness

You may wonder how Old American can make the rate for this policy as low as it is. (See the table in the right-hand column.) This is accomplished by having policy benefits for sickness start with the beginning of the fourth day of hospital confinement. This avoids those small one, two, or three day claims that run up costs. BUT BENEFITS ARE PAYABLE FROM THE FIRST DAY, of course, IF HOSPITALIZED FROM AN ACCIDENT. In either case, benefits continue for one full year (a maximum of $5,200 in benefits).

So there won't be any misunderstanding, the policy does not cover losses caused by mental conditions; rest cure; intoxication (of a covered person); unauthorized use of narcotic drugs; pregnancy, childbirth, or complications of either; injury or sickness due to war or any act incident to war. Hernia is considered a sickness, not an injury. Confinement in a government hospital is not covered. Pre-existing conditions are not covered during the first two policy years, but after that they are. Nor is any person covered while in the armed services of any country (but in such case, a pro rata refund of the premium would be made).

It is important to know, too, that even if you have other hospitalization insurance, you still get benefits due you from your Old American policy.

You will like doing business with Old American

And most important of all, Old American has a reputation for paying its claims. When you have a claim, simply notify us. We will mail forms to be filled out. You then return the forms along with any other items requested, such as the hospital bill showing the number of days confined. We then mail your benefit check upon approval of the claim.

RIGHT NOW ALL YOU NEED TO SEND TO APPLY FOR THE FIRST 30 DAYS COVERAGE UNDER THE POLICY IS 25¢. THIS ONE AMOUNT (25¢) COVERS YOU AND EACH FAMILY MEMBER YOU WANT TO INCLUDE.

*Regular low monthly rates

Here are the monthly rates for Old American's HOSPITAL INCOME POLICY. Semi-annual and annual rates will be shown on the policy itself.

Each person (man or woman) under 65	$ 2.50
Each person (man or woman) 65 to 75	$ 6.00
Each unmarried dependent child under 18	$ 1.25
You may apply for yourself alone, or you may include additional family members. Typical family combinations are:
Man and wife (both under 65)	$ 5.00
Man and wife (under 65) and 1 child	$ 6.25
Either parent (under 65) and 1 child	$ 3.75
Man and wife (under 65) and 2 children	$ 7.50
Man and wife (both between 65 and 75)	$12.00

When you renew at the annual rate, you get 12 months for the cost of only 11.

(There will be a grace period of 31 days allowed for each renewal and the policy is renewable with the company's approval at these rates.)

Keeping a Child's Love

rives, he is an anarchist—selfish and demanding. He must be taught to fit into society, he must be educated in the consequences of breaking society's existing rules and the benefits of living by them.

It's a delicate and narrow path, but the parent must try from the beginning to train his child to know the rules, their rewards and penalties, and at the same time avoid techniques so scarring that they set deep patterns of passivity from which the child will be unable to mature into a free individual.

The child, an unformed human being, needs authority. Unfortunately, the great bulk of humanity remain children all their days. Only the most mature can live comfortably with it, respecting but not needing it. Proper attitudes and techniques on the part of parents can set a child on the road to maturity.

The parents are individuals with rights of their own, and this is a very important reason to exercise authority. Not only does it keep the parents from being tyrannized, but the child, who sees his parents protecting their rights as individuals, has a better pattern to imitate.

I knew a mother of two daughters who insisted on feeding them from her own plate and depriving herself in the process. The psychological implications of this action might be explained by a professional, but to me it showed a failure to demonstrate to those daughters that mother had a right to her own food—and her own life.

I like to remember that the child is, as Jean Kerr once said, smaller than me and it's my house. This is a valid bit of education—it teaches the child about his limitations and implants a desire for his own house and future independence.

I've learned as much from my children as I've taught them. By listening to their ideas, putting myself in the perspective of their tastes, I've added whole new dimensions to my musical and artistic tastes and have a much better understanding of the new movements among the young. There's a lot to learn, too. I hear their music, and I think it's better than the popular music of my generation. I examine their values, and they are better values than the ones in the transition from Gibson Girl to flapper.

One of the great rewards of being a parent is the curriculum offered by your children for your own education. This challenge exists from the outset and gains sophistication far faster than we usually realize.

Here is a great chance to gather knowledge for use at later stages of the parent-child relationship, to see yourself from a new perspective, to check your own ingrown habits, to stave off for a time the symptoms of encroaching age, to enjoy change instead of dreading it, and finally to know with gratitude that these people you've helped along the road to maturity have been helping you, in turn, every step of the way.

The fourth guideline is probably the most important of all—to know when to let go. My daughter is going out on a date? Yes, I'd like to meet the young man, not to test him but to be sociable. Will I worry about my daughter? Yes. I worry that a drunken driver might smash into her date's car or that she could be harmed by one of the many dangerous elements in a big city. Neither she nor I, however, have complete control over that. Am I concerned about her morals? Absolutely not.

If the job of instilling morals wasn't completed by the time she was 10, it is too late now. She has the facts and has developed her outlook. What she chooses to do, thus armed, is entirely up to her. She won't have parents hovering disapprovingly over her.

The real problem of letting go of your children relates to all the others. If you've failed to recognize the individuality of your child, you'll tend to think he's not ready to be on his own even when he is. If you've oversacrificed for the child and failed to preserve your own individuality, you'll tend to feel so much a part of the child that you'll have difficulty separating his life from yours.

Finally, if you have learned nothing from your child, you'll probably not have learned of his readiness to leave. He will leave, of course, and you'll be the loser. ◆

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS
AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

Makes a Perfect Christmas Gift

Made by German Artisans in the Black Forest

Each House is Hand Painted, Hand Assembled & Hand Finished

Since 1794, generation after generation of craftsmen, from the Schwarzwald in Western Germany, have been making these wonderful little Wetterhauschen. For over 2 centuries, they have been imitated, but never equaled. Their ancient art, jealously guarded, has been passed on down through the years, from father to son. Each little house is fashioned with quality components and the rich dark woods of the Black Forest. Every one is put together by hand — piece by piece — with typical German precision. Now—for a SHORT TIME ONLY—readers of this publication may get this genuine, original Wetterhauschen at a DEEP SLASHED PRICE by following the conditions shown above.

FASCINATING GO-GO ACTION

Grumpy Herr Hans and his flaxen haried daughter Brunhilde "live" in this Black Forest cottage. When grumpy Hans sallies forth with his diminutive umbrella, be on guard! Rain, snow or sleet may be on the way! But when Brunhilde goes for a stroll, be cheerful! Clear, dry weather and sunny skies are ahead. These tiny little "persons" look so real, they almost seem alive. Their go-go movements are controlled by an ingenious yet simple mechanism based on the principle of hydrometrics. In fact, it is depended upon to help foretell local weather conditions in scores of countries 'round the world. This genuine Wetterhauschen will thrill and fascinate you and your friends, year after year.

EVERY LITTLE HOUSE A MASTERPIECE OF FAMOUS GERMAN WOODCRAFTERS

Please do not confuse this finely made Weather House with the cheap, imitations selling for a dollar or two. This is the genuine-original "WETTERHAUSCHEN"—imported direct from the Black Forest factory in Western Germany. Truly a product of fine artistry and skill! The dark stained woods are carefully mounted — by hand — piece by piece! Interior walls are a pretty velvety green. A Bavarian balcony is adorned with tiny overhanging flowers, hand painted in lovely colors. A Dual Thermometer gives you the correct temperature in Fahrenheit and Centigrade too!

MARVEL OF MINIATURE ART

You will be delighted at the miniature water pump . . . the proverbial toadstool . . . the nightingale poised to warble its glorious song . . . the Lilliputian flowers and bushes! Everything is perfectly shaped and meticulously fitted together, by nimble fingered Bavarian craftsmen. The figurines, flowers, pump etc., are hand painted with great care. You'd expect to pay a tidy sum for this little marvel, but for a short time it can be yours at an incredibly low price!

YOU ARE INVITED TO TAKE ONE FOR FREE HOME TRIAL!

No risk. No obligation. We ask you to put this lovely little marvel in your own home on FREE TRIAL. Compare it! Notice the fine, precision detailing . . . the rich sepia-stained woods . . . the lovely hand painted figurines and flowers. Then see it in operation for an entire week. You must be thrilled and satisfied in every way. Otherwise return and get your money back by return mail! Please send only 2.69 plus postage for one. SAVE MORE — 2 weather houses to one address cost only 4.95 — a saving of over $1.00. LIMIT: 2 per reader. Please rush your order today to be sure to get yours. Orders sent after expiration date will be returned to sender. Send money saving coupon below to the friendly gift store known from coast-to-coast.

Precision Made by Proud Artisans in Famous German Black Forest

Genuine, Original Wetterhauschen are made only in the Schwarzwald (Black Forest) of Germany. In tiny hamlets of this fairy tale region, the art of making weather houses was refined and perfected. The secrets of staining, moulding, cutting, mounting, were passed from generation to generation. They were never revealed to outsiders. Down through the centuries these little weather houses have been imitated, but no one has ever equalled the quaint charm and precision workmanship of the originals. In fact, every genuine wetterhauschen is hand assembled, hand finished and hand painted.

Orders shipped same day received! Allow 1 to 2 weeks for arrival.

BRITT EKLAND: Marriage Made Her a Star

Peter Sellers helps wife's career.

A STRIKING Swedish blonde with up-turned nose entered a New York shop this fall, and the owner lingeringly admired her diminutive but shapely proportions.

"Say," he exclaimed, "you're a big movie star, aren't you! But I forget the name."

"Britt Ekland," said the 24-year-old modish beauty.

"Of course!" the shopkeeper replied. "I've seen all your pictures."

Britt Ekland relates the story with a wry smile because although she is used to being called a "movie star," the shopkeeper would have had to be a trivia expert to have seen any of her pictures. While Britt is recognized as a "star" from Athens to Hollywood, until recently she had only one minor part in an internationally distributed film.

The reason for her fame? Three years ago, as a bit-part actress, she married Peter Sellers, 41, and he is a star by any standards. "Somehow," Britt says uncomplainingly, "people make the strangest associations. In their mind Peter is a star—therefore, so am I."

In recent months, Britt has made an effort to earn her star's reputation. She costarred with her husband in the comedy "The Bobo" and soon will be seen in "The Night They Raided Minsky's."

"When I met Peter," she recalls, "I had just signed for my first major picture. We were married within three weeks after meeting, and I just quit the picture flat." (That led to a $1½-million lawsuit, which Sellers settled out of court.)

"I told Peter: 'I don't think it's fair to you for me to continue my career.' He insisted, though, that I should. He said he believed in me as an actress and wouldn't be responsible for ending my career."

Before the impasse could be settled, Peter suffered a serious heart attack, and Britt put everything aside to administer to him. "Next came our baby Victoria," says Britt, "so more delay. But Peter kept insisting I return to work, so I did."

She sounds quite offhand about it, as if her decision was influenced more by her husband's ambition than her own.

Britt met Peter—and temporarily suspended her career—while in London for what was to be her first major film. She was in her hotel room when a knock sounded on the door. "It was Peter," she says, with a little awe still in her voice. "He said he'd seen my picture in the paper and would I come to his room for a drink.

"Well, I'd heard about actors and hotel rooms, but he seemed quite nice, so I gambled. Do you know what? Don't believe everything you hear about actors—some are gentlemen. My Peter is, for example.

"Now that I think of it, it was the most wonderfully romantic thing, especially if you know Peter. He is a painfully shy man. It must have been a tremendous effort for him to knock so boldly."

But doesn't costarring with an actor of Sellers' stature overshadow an actress—especially a fledgling like Britt? She shrugs.

"At first I used to be concerned when people referred to me as Mrs. Sellers rather than Britt Ekland. I suppose now they may say, 'What's-her-name? You know, Peter Sellers' wife.' Oh, I don't care. Both names are nice."

Peter Sellers may dream of seeing his wife a true star in her own right. But Mrs. Sellers' shrug is that of a wife who wants to please her husband—even if she doesn't share all his enthusiasms.

—Jack Ryan

A PROPOSITION

A wild new thing is about to happen: the mad, mod scene is about to witness the birth of a fantastic new magazine destined for greatness. Its name is Avant-Garde.

As its name implies, Avant-Garde will be a forward-directed, daring, and wildly hedonistic magazine. It will report on every aspect of the ebullient new life-style now emerging in America, and it will do so with no put-ons and no inhibitions.

The pages of Avant-Garde will explode with biting satire, incisive profiles, audacious reportage, lush graphic art, consciousness-expanding fiction, and poetry that speaks. Avant-Garde will cover Art, Politics, Science, and every other subject of interest to readers of superior intelligence and cultivated taste. It will be a bimonthly of:

—beauty, bringing to graphic art a transcendental new kind of high;

—truth, eschewing platitudes and really telling it like it is; and —love, unabashedly reveling in the One Universal Ultimate Good.

In short, Avant-Garde will be a hip, joyous, beautiful new magazine. It will be the voice of the Turned-On Generation.

Perhaps the best way to describe Avant-Garde for you is to list the kinds of articles it will print:

The Dead-Serious Movement to Run Allen Ginsberg for Congress

Homage to Muhammad Ali—High praise by 35 celebrities (including Marlon Brando, Jackie Robinson, and Woody Allen).

Coming: Synthetic (and Therefore Legal) Marijuana

Radio Free America—A professor's plan (already in motion) to establish a pirate radio station off the coast of California.

The "Bust" of Charlotte Moorman—The gifted young cellist describes her arrest for giving a concert hall recital "topless."

The CIA's Super-Salaried "Super-Spook"—An exposé of an operative who is paid $1 million a year to fink for Big Brother.

The Intellectual Companions of Jacqueline Kennedy

Bob Dylan's Suppressed—and Pithiest—Song Lyrics

Salvador Dali: A New Dimension in Erotic Art—Drawings created especially to celebrate the launching of Avant-Garde.

George Romney's Bizarre Religious Beliefs

Toward the Elimination of War—A little-known exchange of correspondence between Einstein and Freud.

Understanding Zowie—A glossary of Switched-On Generation jargon.

The Fugs—New York's most way-out electronic raga-rock nerve-thrill company.

A Gastronomical Guide to the Year 2000

The Writing on the Wall—The emergence of graffiti as a medium of social protest.

Move Over, Lady Chatterley—A preview of several erotic classics soon to be published in this country for the first time.

The Prison Poems of Ho Chi Minh

Mixed-Media Art: The Pop World's Newest "Scrambled Oeuvre"

My Love for You Is Stronger than Dirt—The Madison Avenue dating scene as observed by Dan ("How to Be a Jewish Mother") Greenburg.

Poets at War— Bitter anti-war verse by GI's in Vietnam.

John Lennon as a Master of Prose

Ingenious—and Perfectly Legal—New Ways Around Abortion Laws

Everett Dirksen as "The Wizard of Ooze"—A Pop Impression.

The Emergence of Abstract Expressionist Journalism—As exemplified by the L.A. Free Press, N.Y. East Village Other, and Berkeley Barb.

Group Psychotherapy on TV

Aubrey Beardsley's Suppressed Erotic Works—A Portfolio.

A Geneticist's Plea for State-Sponsored Breeding of Supermen

Pornographic Film Festivals at Lincoln Center by 1970—Predictions by an underground film-maker.

In sum, Avant-Garde will be a feast of gourmet food-for-thought prepared by the avant-garde for the avant-garde. It will be the quintessence of intellectual sophistication.

The creative director of Avant-Garde is one of the most fertile minds in American publishing today: Herb Lubalin, the country's foremost art director (it was he who designed the elegant—and cruelly suppressed—quarterly Eros). In addition, the staff of Avant-Garde includes several of the most gifted artists, writers, and photographers of our time.

In format, Avant-Garde will more closely resemble an expensive art folio than a magazine. It will be printed by costly offset lithography on the finest antique and coated papers. It will be bound in 12-point Frankote boards for permanent preservation.

Avant-Garde will be available by subscription only. It will cost $10 per year. This is not cheap, but we have a proposition:

If you will enter your subscription right now, before Avant-Garde's first issue is sold out, we will send you eight months—the better part of a year—for only $3.99. This is a MERE FRACTION of its actual value!

As a Charter Subscriber, you will also be entitled to:

—Buy gift subscriptions for only $3.99.

—Renew your own subscription for $3.99 forever, despite any subsequent price increases.

—Begin your own subscription with Volume I, Number 1. This is not to be taken lightly since first issues of high-quality magazines invariably become valuable collectors' items.

Since this spectacular offer will be withdrawn as soon as Avant-Garde's first issue is sold out, we urge you to act at once. To enter your subscription, simply fill out the coupon below and mail it with $3.99 to Avant-Garde, 110 W. 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

Then sit back and prepare to enjoy a completely uninhibited new magazine that really blows the mind.

AVANT GARDE

Avant-Garde, 110 W. 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

I enclose $3.99 for an eight-month subscription to the magnificent new magazine Avant-Garde. I understand that I will be entitled to all Charter Subscriber privileges and that I am paying a MERE FRACTION of the standard $10-per-year price!

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY---I want to pass on a way to clean brass ashtrays in minute and with little rubbing. Apply tomato catsup generously all over the tray and let it stand while doing something else. Then scrub it off with a cloth under warm water. It will shine like new and with no need to use abrasives that might leave scratches.---MARY

DEAR POLLY—When writing letters in hot, humid weather the hand sometimes sticks to the paper and it is hard to move it along. Place a small piece of plastic (cut from a bag) under your hand and it will glide easily.—JOAN

DEAR POLLY---My two children have many stuffed animals that don't get used, so I decorated their windows by placing these toys on top of the curtain rods. The ones with legs fit best. I put one in the middle of the valance and one on each side of the bottom curtain. Use as many as you like, as long as they don't interfere with the shades or blinds.---CAROL

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—You girls who wear glasses can leave them on when spraying your hair and with no fear of their being covered with spray. Simply cover the glasses with plastic wrap. This certainly helps you see what you are doing.—MRS. N. G. M.

DEAR POLLY---When sewing in hems I find the hem bindings show through some materials. Instead of using them on such fabrics I use one-half-inch-wide lace and, if it shows, the effect is pretty through thin dresses.---SHIRLEY

DEAR POLLY—To keep letters or papers from flying out of my bike basket I snap a couple of clip clothespins on the edge of the basket. I just clip anything to the basket and no longer have to chase flying papers.—JINNY

DEAR POLLY---I am only 11-years-old and one of my jobs is to wash the dishes. The other day the sponge was just about worn out, so mother cut the strings off my little brother's outgrown terrycloth bib, and it was just right. The rough texture is wonderful for scrubbing. Don't throw away such bibs, save them for dish washing.---JOY

DEAR POLLY—If you run out of tape for putting up notes for the children or a neighbor, write the note on the front of an envelope, dampen the gummed flap and it is ready to stick up wherever you want it.—SHARON
